U. S. Troops Block Reds From Soviet Rail Office

Berlin Headquarters For Eastern Zone Traffic Shut Off; Trains Enter City

Policy Is 'Sit Tight'

U. S. FORCES in Berlin will sit tight and can hold out indefinitely, Secretary Royall says. Page 4.

New Russian Move

By Wes Gallagher

Berlin, April 2 (AP).—American troops surrounded a building which Soviet officials use to direct rail traffic in the eastern zone of Germany tonight and refused to allow any Russians to enter.

The building is in the American sector of the city. At least one Russian general was in the building at the time.

could leave but could not return.

The American troops moved soon after word was received that an American freight train had entered the Soviet zone of Germany in a test of the Russian land blockade of Berlin. The trains passed the Russian control point without incident or inspection. Two British trains aluso had entered.

Soviet officials were said to have demanded to know whether or not they were being evicted from the rail traffic building. The officer in command of the Americans merely replied he had orders not to permit Russians to enter the building.

Germans were allowed to enter and leave freely.

"Sharper Measures" Hinted

The American move was expected to inconvenience considerably Soviet officials in directing rail movements in the eastern zone.

The rainway building is near the Soviet sector but well within the American zone of the city. The Russians took over the building when they captured Berlin and retained it even after the city was occupied by the four powers.

The Russians further ruptured the four-power government of the city today by announcing they were withdrawing from seven of the 19 committees in the Kommandatura, governing body for the city, and the Russian omcial press

Brother-in-Law Held in Slaying Of Staunton Nurse

Staunton, Va., April 2 (AP).—Police today arrested Jacob Hevener, jr., on a charge of murder in the slaying of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Arlene Hudson Hevener, 44-year-old nurse.

Hevener's arrest was on a warrant obtained by Police Chief E. L. Bragg. It charged that Hevener "did unlawfully and feloniously kill and murder" Mrs. Hevener. Commonwealth's Attorney Fitzhugh Elder, jr., recommended bond of $5000.

Mrs. Hevener died in a Staunton hospital Wednesday. She was brought to the hospital Monday night and Dr. R. P. Bell, alternate city coroner, said she was suffering from "extensive brain injury, multiple body contusions and second-degree burns of the abdomen and thighs." After her death, the body was sent to the University of Virginia Hospital for an autopsy. Funeral services were held today.

Rep. Patman To Be Guest Speaker At Book Luncheon

Rep. Wright Patman (D., Tex.) will be one of four authors to speak at The Washington Post Book Luncheon Wednesday at Hotel Statler. Representative Patman wrote the widely praised book, "Our American Government."

Also on the panel will be James A. Farley ("Jim Farley's Story—The Roosevelt Years"), Willie Snow Ethridge ("It's Greek To Me"), and Margaret Widdemer ("Lani"). Book and department stores are now selling tickets for the luncheon.

Rep. Isacson Turned Down On Passport

Denied Permission To Attend Conference On Aid to Greek Rebels

By The Associated Press

Representative Leo Isacson of New York, a Henry A. Wallace supporter, has been denied a passport to attend an international conference at Paris, a State Department spokesman said last night.

Isacson recently won a seat in Congress on the American Labor Party ticket, with the backing of Wallace.

Isacson had told the department he planned to attend an international conference on aid to Greece, to be held in Paris this month.

The State Department spokesman said the conference would include members of committees "which have been organized in most eastern European countries with the official sanction of those countries for the avowed purpose of furnishing material and morale assistance to the guerilla forces in Greece."

U. N. Censure Cited

Isacson, according to the State Department, had planned to attend the Paris conference as an observer for the American Council for Aid to Democratic Greece.

The State Department spokesman added:

"It will be recalled that the United Nations General Assembly passed by a large majority a resolution on October 21, 1947, introduced by the United States calling on Greece's northern neighbors to do nothing to assist the guerilla forces fighting against the Greek government.

"The U. S. Government through its legislative processes has initated a program of assistance to the government of Greece in order that that country might maintain its sovereignty against attack from guerilla forces assisted from abroad.

Prague Asked To Call Home Two Attaches

First Secretary Held 'Persona Non Grata'; 3d Diplomat Involved

The United States has asked Czechoslovakia to recall two officials assigned to the Czech embassy here, it was disclosed last night.

In addition the withdrawal of a third diplomat from a country "behind the Iron Curtain" has been requested.

In a note delivered to the embassy several days ago, the State Department said that Theo H. Florin, first secretary, and Dr. Evzen Syrovatka, an attache, were "persona non grata" t othis Government.

The action was confirmed by the State Department in response to a United Press inquiry. The third official was not identified. What foreign government is involved was not disclosed.

The State Department gave no reason for its action against the Czechs but one source said it was based on "very serious considerations."

Ordinarily the department calls the attention of foreign embassies or legations to "embarrassing activities" of their representatives and the individuals usually are withdrawn voluntarily.

The Czech Embassy refused to comment on the action.

Growers Prepare For Killing Frost

Winchester, Va., April 2 (AP).—Fruit growers in Frederick and Clarke counties were preparing to fire their smudge pots tonight as the United States Weather Bureau forecast temperatures down to 20 degrees and a killing frost.

The forecast for tonight was "colder with temperatures possibly touching 20 degrees."

To back up the predictions the growers said they noticed a brisk wind which had prevailed throughout the day in this area subsided

City Labeled 'Hotbed' at Trial

Hagerstown Vice Called Lure To Women Over 3-State Area

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—The Government charged today that a thriving prostitution business in Hagerstown, Md., "draws women like flies," and a young Virginian was sentenced to 18 months in prison for taking his intended bride there to work in a "house."

The sentence was imposed on Stephen C. Hudson, 20, of Lynchburg, Va., on a charge of transporting Juanita Campbell across State lines for "immoral purposes and debauchery."

There was evidence that Mrs. Campbell's earnings were $120 a week.

Eight others pleaded innocent to similar charges. They were indicted after a four-State FBI roundup last December. Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut ordered them to trial later this month.

Thirteen others were arrested originally on the white slavery charges under the Federal Mann Act, but no indictments were returned against five of them. They were wives, former wives, and sweethearts of those charged with transporting them to Hagerstown to work in the red light district.

During today's proceedings, Assistant U. S. Attorney, James A. Morrow told Judge Chesnut that Hagerstown had become "a hotbed of prostitution," attracting women "like flies" from Virginia, Pennsylvania and Indiana.

When Hudson came up before Judge Chesnut, defense counsel

Government Offers Draft, UMT Bill

19-25-Year-Olds Subject to Service In Twin Proposals Sent to Congress

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Legislation calling for an immediate selective draft and a long-range program of universal military training was laid before Congress yesterday by the Administration.

The double-barrelled military manpower measure reached Capitol Hill as General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower declared both steps are vital to American security.

Congressional reaction, however, indicated that approval of the draft was likely with UMT a doubtful prospect at this time. House Speaker Joseph W. Martin told this newspaper that Congress would have to pass a draft bill this session to bring the armed forces to their required strength.

Two-Years Service Asked

He added that since military experts view UMT as a long-range program, rather than an emergency measure, it probably could be deferred with safety.

As forecast, the Administration's draft proposal provides for registering all men age 18 through 44, with those 19 through 25 subject to draft. Youths of 17 would be registered for UMT and given training when they are 18 or 19.

Two years' service would be required of each draftee, with most veterans exempt in time of peace. Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, who submitted the measure to Congress yesterday, estimated last week that the induction of approximately 220,000 men would be required during the forthcoming year.

Exemption for Dependents

While the proposed bill left most deferments up to executive order, the call of married men or those with dependents is not contemplated at this time.

Veterans with less than 90 days' active service would be subject to draft into the regular armed forces. Those with 18 months or more active service would not be liable at all in peace-time, while former GIs with three to 18 months would have to enroll in the National Guard or Reserves to escape induction.

A special call for doctors, dentists and veterinaries up to the age of 45, as reported earlier in the Post, is contained in the Administration proposal.

"Security Training Corps"

Under UMT, youths would be enrolled in the "National Security Training Corps," and be liable to a year's military training. They would not be in the military service, however, and could not be sent overseas.

The obligation for a year's training would be met by six months' basic training and then enrolling in the National Guard, Reserves, ROTC, technical schools, etc. While in training, youths would receive $30 a month pay.

ERP Bill Sent White House One Day Late

Speedy Passage Beats Predictions By Week; 'Terrific Feat,' Says Lovett

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The European Recovery Program came safely to the end of its long legislative journey at 3:40 yesterday afternoon.

At that moment the Senate approved a conference report putting ERP into a $6,098,000,000 foreign aid bill, together with programs of economic and military assistance for Greece, Turkey and China.

A brief explanation of the conference changes by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, a question or two by Senator Claude Pepper about the United Nations Children's Fund, a few "ayes" and "noes" from the handful of Senators on the floor, and the job was done.

Sent to White House

The bill was sent to the White House for President Truman's signature 3½ months after the President had submitted the vast 4¼-year recovery program to Congress, and a little over two weeks after he had reminded Congress of the "great urgency" of passing it promptly.

Earlier in the afternoon the House had approved the conference report by a roar of approval and then by a 317-75 roll call. The voting line-up was virtually unchanged from that of Tuesday, changed from that of Tuesday when the House passed its own version of the bill by a resounding vote of 329 to 74.

Day After Deadline

Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), who piloted the bill through the House, apologized with a smile because, he said, "we are 24 hours late." He was referring to the April 1 deadline originally set by Secretary Marshall and later indorsed by the Republican leadership.

"We are, however, a week ahead of the program the critics considered possible," said Vorys, obviously proud at what the House had done. Few congressional observers ever expected such prompt action, and fewer still imagined that the bill would be so nearly intact when the House had finished with it.

"Terrific Feat"—Lovett

Most congressional leaders preferred to let their action speak for itself, but Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett praised it in enthusiastic terms.

He told his press conference it was a terrific accomplishment, an exhibition of what the American form of government could do in handling a difficult situation. He said it was a heart-warming thing to see the involved democratic process of full discussion really go to work when it wanted to.

The Acting Secretary then disclosed that a skeleton staff, drawn

Strong Stassen Area Invaded By Dewey in Wisconsin Bid

Stassen Favor Shown In Maine and Iowa GOP Delegate Choice

Each Tries for Final Punch; MacArthur's Name Kept in News

Harold E. Stassen scored in two States yesterday in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Maine Republicans chose 13 delegates to the party's national convention and seven of them were reported to be in favor of Stassen. Stassen himself, at Milwaukee, said his information was that "10 or more" of the Maine delegates "will be with us on the first ballot at Philadelphia."

At the same time, the Iowa Republican convention chose 23 delegates, all uninstructed. A Des Moines newspaper said a poll of the delegates to the State convention showed that Stassen was the presidential choice of more than 40 per cent of them, about twice as many as favored Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Milwaukee, April 2 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen and Gov. Tomas E. Dewey crossed campaign trails in Wisconsin today, each trying to get in the final punch.

Dewey, winding up a vigorous two-day effort in behalf of his bid for the State's delegates to the Republican National Convention, rammed into northwestern Wisconsin—strong Stassen territory. The former Minnesota Governor matched Dewey's appearance of yesterday at Racine and in Milwaukee.

The name of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the absent candidate in the tussle for Wisconsin's 27 delegates in Tuesday's balloting, was kept in the news through a little left-handed cooperation from State GOP Chairman Harvey Higley.

Exhibits Statement

Higley, nominally neutral in the delegate struggle, showed a reporter a statement he said he had received from Ervin Hohensee predicting that Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan would support the general. Hohensee is listed as secretary of the MacArthur organization in Washington.

Higley, outwardly noncommittal but regarded as favoring Stassen, said the statement quoted a 1944 magazine article in which Vandenberg praised MacArthur. He said,

Tables Show How New Law Will Reduce Income Taxes

By the United Press

The tables below show how the revised tax law will reduce Federal income taxes for various categories of taxpayers.

The column headed "Net income before personal exemption" means the taxable income which remains after the taxpayer has taken off the standard allowable deduction, or has made separate deductions for such things as business expenses, contributions and interest; but it is before subtraction of the personal exemption of the taxpayer and dependents.

In the tables for married persons, the 1947 tax is shown both for the 36 States and the District of Columbia, in which the community property system is not in effect, and for the 12 community property States. The law puts the community property system into Nation-wide effect for tax purposes and makes the Federal income taxes uniform. Previously Federal taxes were lower in the community property States.

Under the community property system, it may be assumed for tax purposes that half of the family income belong to the wife. The resulting tax is the same as if husband and wife divided their income equally and filed separate tax returns. This results in a smaller tax for couples with net income in excess of $3000 or $4000.

Figures showing the tax under the new law are for persons under 65. The law gives a double personal exemption to all persons 65 or older, thus giving them a special additional tax reduction.

Truman, Tuck Shake Hands Over and Over

Cordial Atmosphere Prevails at W. & M. College Ceremony

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Williamsburg, Va., April 2.—No sparks flew when President Truman and Gov. William M. Tuck came together here today.

The two men, meeting on historic ground that once knew the tread of Jefferson and other great gentlemen and patriots, greeted each other cordially From that point on, their quarrel over civil rights in the Southland seemed to recede into the background—for today at least.

Uppermost in the minds of 4000 persons gathered on the campus of William and Mary College, it was clear, was the far more fateful quarrel between the West and Soviet Russia

"Appalling Menace"

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada, one of the orators at a ceremony marking Canadian-American Day, referred to the "appalling menace" of communism, and said:

"A way must be found and that speedily to insure that nations which are still free will not be . . . defeated or destroyed one by one."

President Truman, whose overnight cruise down the Potomac was interrupted by fog, arrived in Williamsburg this morning after a motor trip from Dahlgren, Va. He was met on the outskirts by John D. Rockefeller 3d, whose family restored this old colonial capital of Virginia, and Mrs. Rockefeller.

Riding down flag-lined Duke of Gloucester st., on the way to William and Mary College, Mr. Truman was pelted with flowers by school children. The flowers were dandelions, plucked from a nearby garden.

The President and the Governor of Virginia met just outside the Sir Christopher Wren Building, one of the restored glories of William and Mary.

Oleo Tax Bill Forced Out Of Committee

Nation's Butter Makers Suffer Sharp Reverse

The Nation's butter makers, protected for 62 years by Federal taxes on butter substitutes, lost a bitter battle yesterday.

Representative L. Mandel Rivers (D., S. C.), leader of a bloc seeking repeal of special taxes on margarine, announced that the necessary 218 House members had signe da petition to force the repeal legislation out of the House Agriculture Committee.

The committee on March 1 passed by 16 to 10, a motion by Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), a leader of the dairy bloc, to table 18 separate measures repealing or amending the margarine tax laws.

Meantime an attack on another law discriminating against margarine was underway before the House Armed Services Committee. Dr. Anton J. Carlson, Chicago University physiologist, yesterday urged that laws prohibiting the Army and Navy to serve margarine as a table spread, be repealed.

The laws the repealers seek to repeal, call for a tax of a quarter of a cent a pound on uncolored margarine and 10 cents a pound on yellow margarine. They also seek to repeal occupational taxes on margarine handlers, such as: manufacturers, $600 a year; wholesalers, $480 a year for colored margarine and $200 for uncolored; and retailers $48 a year for colored and $6 for uncolored margarine.

The measure to be voted on now comes up on April 26, when the House will vote on whether to discharge the committee, before it can act on any of the bills.

Talk of a compromise measure was heard last night. Some Republicans were urging the committee to offer its own bill—probably repealing only part of the tax laws—rather than accept any victory by Democrats pushing the present action.

Repeal of the margarine laws is favored by an almost solid Southern bloc.

German Editor Had Idea

Bill Offered for Berlin Art Exhibitions Throughout U. S.

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

A Berlin editor gave birth to part of the idea. Yesterday Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) introduced a bill to permit exhibition of the fabulous German art treasures, now at the National Gallery of Art., throughout the country.

Funds collected at the exhibitions would be used for the benefit of German children through the United Nations International Children's Fund.

The bill affirms German ownership of the 202 captured old masters that have been valued at 80 million dollars. However, it takes cognizance of thefriction in Berlin today by authorizing retention of the collection "until such time as the Uinted States formally recognizes a national government for Germany."

The bill brought immediate support from both parties. Although the paintings were to have been returned this month to the American Zone of German, Chairman Wayne Morse (R., Ore.) of an Armed Services subcommittee said he was prepared to start public hearings on the Fulbright bill without delay.

His group decided several months ago that the paintings were not to be considered as war booty and agreed that they were the

7,400,000 Now Paying To Get Full Exemption

Law Is Retroactive To January 1 But Withholding Change Is Month Off Yet

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

By a thumping majority, Congress overrode President Truman's veto yesterday and voted into law a tax cut for 52 million Federal income-tax payers.

House and Senate brushed aside President Truman's warning that the $4,800,000,000 cut is an ill-timed inflationary measure which would sap America's strength in time of danger.

The tax slash is effective as of last January 1, but the first effects will be felt on May 1 when taxes withheld from payrolls are reduced.

First Major Cut in 20 Years

Some 7,400,000 taxpayers in the lowest brackets will be dropped from the rolls entirely. The remaining 47,100,000 will benefit from increased exemptions and a cut in the tax due after all other benefits have been figured.

The Nation's first major cut of individual income taxes in nearly 20 years became law when House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), and Senate President Arthur H., Vandenberg (R., Mich.) signed the act late in the afternoon.

But many Republicans and Democrats who piled up the bipartisan vote for the measure were acknowledging they may have to raise taxes again in the not too distant future. That will depend upon what steps this Nation has to take to counter Russian aggression, they said.

Votes to Spare

The vote was 311 to 88 in the House and 77 to 16 in the Senate.

The House margin was 45 votes larger than the necessary two thirds. The Senate had 19 votes to spare.

Only two House Republicans—Representatives H. Carl Anderson of Minnesota and Thruston Ballard Morton of Kentucky—deserted the GOP leadership in its third and finally successful attempt to cut taxes overw President Truman's disapproval.

On the other side of the aisle, 82 Democrats abandoned the President to join with the GOP.

In the Senate, 27 Democrats voted with 50 Republicans to override. No Republicans voted to sustain the veto.

Only one Democrat, Senator J. William Fulbright (Ark.) switched from original support of the bill to sustain the veto.

Provisions of Law

The law allows:

1. An increase from $500 to $600 in the personal exemption for each taxpayer and dependent.
2. A special extra exemption to bring the total to $1200 for those who are blind or 65 or more years of age.
3. Extension of the so-called "community property" principle, now in force in 12 States, to all 48. Husbands and wives may now split up their combined income for the purpose of figuring taxes, even if one spouse earns all the money. This can result in tax savings ranging from 2.93 per cent to 40.5 per cent in addition to all other cuts in the law.
4. Approximately 7,400,000 taxpayers who earn less than $700 are removed from the rolls altogether
5. There is a 12.6 per cent cut on the first $2000 of taxable income (after deductions and exemptions). There is a 7.4 per cent cut on that part of the income above $2000 and up to $136,700. Above $136,700 the cut is 5 per cent.
6. A new national system for gift and estate tax liability is established, including a community property provision.

26000-Word Denunciation

Although it was nearly a foregone conclusion that Congress would override the veto, the Administration had hoped the new 14-billion-dollar defense budget in the face of world crisis might shake some Democratic votes.

Income Tax Cut Enacted Over Veto

the tax cut with a 2000-word denunciation of the bill as a threat to national defense preparations, an incitement to high prices, a benefitter of the rich instead of the poor, and a danger to sound Government financing.

The message bristled with phrases such as "reckless disregard," "an evil in disguise," "fiscal sleight of hand" and "inequitable as well as untimely."

Proponents said the measure would spur production, strengthen the economy and grant a much-needed relief to a burdened public.

First congressional action began at 12:33 when a House clerk started to read the veto message. Immediately after the message was ended the vote was taken. There was no debate. The Senate completed its action at 3:18 p. m.

"My fundamental objection to the bill," the Chief Executive told Congress, "is that it would not strengthen, but instead would weaken, the United States."

"To reduce the income of the Government at this time," the President said, "would exhibit a reckless disregard for the soundness of our economy and the finances of our Government."

"All of us are aware that the world situation is one of uncertainty and, indeed, of danger," Mr. Truman declared.

"This bill would undermine the soundness of our Government finances at a time when world peace depends upon the strength of the United States."

Calls Policy Erratic

It is "an erratic and vacillating tax policy," Mr. Truman said, to think of cutting taxes now with a view to restoring revenues when the extent of our military needs are definitely determined.

If we don't reduce the public debt now when we are prosperous, the President maintained, "there is little prospect that it will ever be materially reduced.'"

Tax reduction is not needed to furnish incentive for business, Mr. Truman told the Congress.

"Corporate profits were at extraordinary levels during 1947, reaching 17.3 billion dollars after taxes, contrasted with a previous peak of 12.5 billion dollars in 1946. Preliminary estimates indicate that corporate profits during the first quarter of 1948 have substantially maintained the very high level of 1947."

Gamble With Inflation

The bill is "a gamble" with inflation, he said.

"From the viewpoint of the average family which spends most of its income to buy the necessities of life, the kind of tax reduction which this bill provides would be an evil in disguise."

A large tax reduction now, the President asserted, "would help to drive the cost of living still higher."

"The tax reduction provided by this bill is inequitable as well as untimely.

"In the case of the income tax, nearly 40 per cent of the reduction would go to individuals with net incomes in excess of $5000 who constitute less than 5 per cent of all taxpayers."

Martin, Halleck Reply

Speaker Martin issued a statement in answer to the budget measure.

"Relief from oppressive war taxes was long overdue," he said. "We can give the people this tax relief and at the same time meet the heavy expenditures requested for war preparations. We will keep the budget balanced and make a payment on the national debt.

"Without question this tax cut will stimulate large new income which will take up the slack in revenue returns."

House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) said this was "just an estension of his (Truman's) stubborn opposition to much-needed tax relief and equalization."

Knutson Exultant

Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and author of the original version of the bill and of two other tax measures the President vetoed last year, was exultant.

"Wonderful—this is the crowning feature of my life," he exclaimed as he left the Senate after watching the vote there.

"Sure. If we go on a spending spree, it may be necessary to increase taxes later. We will cross that bridge when we come to it."

House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Texas) said he could see no way to cut taxes and "at the same time do the honest and straightforward thing and make our Nation secure from attack and stop the aggression of desperadoes in the world."

Senate Minority Leader Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) voiced the same arguments, asking that the United States be kept ready "for any emergency."

Many who voted to override said that even if taxes have to be raised again, the present bill will lay the groundwork for a more just distribution of the tax burden.

President Truman has been overridden only once before in his 119 vetoes. The other measure which became law over Mr. Truman's disapproval was the Taft-Hartley Labor Act of 1947.

New Forms Rushed

Even before Martin and Vandenberg had affixed their signatures to the new law, Government presses started grinding out new tax-withholding forms.

These will be rushed to six million employers in the next few days. Oother forms covering the new exemptions and other changes in the old law are scheduled to be rushed out also.

The veto was overriden by one of the largest majorities in the history of Congress. In 1940 the Senate voted 76 to 3 to override President Roosevelt's veto of an act for the relief of certain Spanish War Veterans. The House vote, however, was 275 to 83.

In 1936, the House voted 325 to 61 to override when President Roosevelt vetoed the soldier bonus, but the Senate vote was only 76 to 19.

In the Senate those voting against overriding the veto were:

Democrats:

Barkley (Kl.), Connally (Tenn.), Downey (Calif.), Fulbright (Ark.), Green (R. I.), Hatch (N. Mex.), Hayden (Ariz), Kilgore (W. Va.), McFarland (Ariz), Myers (Pa.).

The following pair was announced:

Conspiracy Denied By Five Members Of Garsson Group

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—Five members of the Garssons munitions combine in Illinois today pleaded not guilty to charges they conspired to defraud the Government and were ordered to stand trial September 13.

They were indicted by a Federal grand jury here last month. The accusation did not include a specific amount, but Government attorneys said they would show the fraud ran more than a million dollars.

Attorneys startled Judge William C. Coleman with an estimate the case would require two months.

"I don't want any counsel to think that any case, criminal or civil, should take as much as two months, "he said. "There must be something wrong if a case cannot be presented in less time than that."

The individuals indicted are Henry M. and Murray W. Garsson, Allen B. Gellman, Joseph T. Weiss and Harry S. Glick.

The Garssons and former Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.), wartime chairman of the House Military Committee, were convicted in Washington last summer on bribery charges. They are now free pending disposition of appeals.

New Withholding Tax Rates

Reduced rates for withholding taxes go into effect May 1 under terms of the tax-cut bill passed yesterday over a veto.

Beginning on that date, the rates of withholding from weekly wages will be those listed in the table below.

The amount withheld from any worker's wages is governed in part by the number of exemptions he claims. He is entitled to one exemption for himself and one for each dependent.

If a worker gets wages from more than one source, he may distribute his exemptions as he wishes. Thus he might have no exemptions to apply on one set of wages.

Here are the new rates:

Strike Move Is Due Today

By The Associated Press

White House moves to end the 19-day coal strike are expected on President Truman's return to Washington today.

The Administration was reported as about decided to seek a court order against John L. Lewis and his idle United Mine Workers.

This was indicated yesterday by Mr. Truman's top advisers. They awaited his return from Williamsburg, Va., where the President went to receive an honorary degree from William and Mary College.

There appeared no alternative but to go to court for an injunction to halt the strike. Government officials said they saw no hope that Lewis and the mine owners would compromise their dispute over mine pensions. And there appeared little prospect Congress could act fast enough to add to White House power to deal with Lewis.

Bolstering the reports that Mr. Truman will order court action was a decision of Attorney General Tom Clark to remain in the Capital.

Clark canceled plans to leave to address the South Carolina Bar Association because of the coal strike crisis.

Mr. Truman reportedly has been told by his political advisers that if the injunction proceedings stick it will be regarded as a victory for him over Lewis; that if they fail, the blame can be put on the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Under that law, Mr. Truman must make public a report handed him Wednesday by a three-man fact-finding board. The President withheld it for the present, taking it along to Williamsburg for study.

Strike Given 11 Days To 'Paralyze Country'

The National Coal Association said last night that 11 more days of the miners' strike will "paralyze the country."

The association published the Government's latest stockpile figures showing 28 days of coal reserves on March 1. The strike has already run 19 days.

New York Exchange Walkout Spreads to 2 Brokerage Houses

New York, April 2 (AP).—Striking employes of the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Exchange extended their walkout to two brokerage houses today, but the spread was not general.

Small picket lines circled in front of buildings housing Shields & Co. and E. F. Hutton Co., shouting invitations to employes to join the AFL United Financial Employes' strike.

Spokesmen for the firms said some employes were in the picket lines, but that only a small number of their workers were absent.

Operations Near Normal

Both the brokerage houses and the two exchanges reported near normal operations on the fifth day of the financial walkout.

In Washington, the Securities and Exchange Commission today refused a request of the striking Wall Street office workers to suspend trading on the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges.

Acting SEC Chairman Robert K. McConnaughey said the commission found no facts to justify suspension of trading.

Three developments were announced by the AFL Financial Workers' Union:

More Pickets Added

Addition of pickets from a dozen AFL affiliates.

As the dozen other AFL affiliates joined in the picketing, a group showed up with circulars signed "Young Peoples Socialist League."

The circulars were headed "solidarity against Wall Street" and depicted police fighting pickets.

The financial workers disowned the circular peddlers and declined their help.

For those who remained at work in the Stock Exchange, there was a 20 per bonus.

The bonus is a fixture based on the ratio of the number of workers on the floor of the exchanges to the number of shares traded. Twenty per cent is the maximum payment.

America, a national Catholic weekly, came to the aid of the strikers editorially, saying the exchanges have assumed "a completely indefensible position on the key issue of union security."

"If you want to know why decent people sometimes become Communists," the weekly said, "take a look at what happened in Wall Street."

As another more than a million share day neared a close, Emil Schram, president of the Stock Exchange, and M. David Keefe, AFL United Financial Employes president, met with a Federal conciliator to attempt a settlement of the strike.

The issues include union demands for a $9 weekly increase for those making less than $40 a week and $15 for those earning $40 or more.

The Stock Exchange has offered $3, $4 and $5 wage increases. The Curb has offered a 10 per cent cost-of-living raise for a year. Neither exchange has met the union's security demands.

40 in Contest For Md. House Nominations

Forty candidates are seeking party nomination for Maryland's six seats in the House of Representatives.

Names of 29 Democrats and 11 Republicans who beat the midnight, April 1, deadline will appear on the ballots in the May 3 primary unless they withdraw before midnight tonight.

No candidate for the presidency filed, but representatives of Republicans Thomas E. Dewey and Harold E. Stassen remained at the Secretary of State's office in Annapolis until the last minute in case anyone filed. The two candidates had agreed not to enter the race unless some other candidate was listed.

Three Are Unopposed

Hardest primary fights will be waged by the Democrats, with contests in all six districts. Republicans John A. Janetzke of the Third District and incumbents J. Glenn Beall of the Sixth District and Edward T. Miller of the First District are unopposed for nomination.

On the final day for filing certificates of candidacy, George Sasche, Glen Burnie attorney, entered the race against Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer, Fifth District Democrat.

On the Republican side in the Fifth District, four candidates will fight for their party's nomination. They are Edwin A. Glenn, Suitland operator of a fleet of taxis; L. J. H. Herwig, Annapolis attorney, Frank E. Vanderhoof, Suitland advertising man, and C. Maurice Weidemeyer, Annapolis attorney.

A last-minute entry in the Sixth District race for a chance to run against Beall was Democrat Will Allen, Bethesda, Washington correspondent for the International Ladies Garment Workers Union publications, the New Leader and the New York Forward. Allen is backed by the Maryland League of United Voters, a group sponsored by the Baltimore chapter of Americans for Democratic Action.

Others Running

Others who are running for the Democratic nomination are F. Byrne Austin, Takoma Park wholesaler, and Dawson J. Horine, Myersville.

Delegates to the State party conventions, which must be held within two weeks after May 3, will also be chosen in the primaries. Delegates to the State conventions will choose delegates to the two national party conventions in Philadelphia this summer.

In Montgomery County, 13 Democrats and 12 Republicans are seeking the seven convention seats that each party will receive.

Seven candidates have filed for Prince Georges County's seven Democratic convention seats and there wil lbe no contest. Eleven candidates have filed for the seven Republican delegateships.

Truman, Tuck Are Cordial

sir," said Governor Tuck, moving forward with outstretched hand. "I am certainly glad to see you, sir."

"I'm glad to see you, too," said Mr. Truman, extending his hand.

Later, clasping hands over and over again, they posed for the still photographers. When newsreel men complained that they had missed out on the shot, they did it over once more.

"They expect us to fight," Mr. Truman said to the Virginian, grinning.

"Well," said Governor Tuck, looking over their academic caps and gowns, "we wouldn't fight in these clothes."

Clouds Over Ceremony

A high-backed mahogany chair, one used by George Washington as a member of a Masonic Lodge here in 1760, was waiting for Mr. Truman when he appeared on the stand set up on the William and Mary campus.

Dark, low-hanging clouds threw a pall over Williamsburg as the ceremony opened.

First, the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Governor Tuck, an alumnus of the college. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, a frequent visitor here in the past, was the next to be awarded the degree, and after him Viscount Harold Alexander of Tunis, Governor General of Canada.

President Truman was the last to receive his honorary degree, as the purple yoke was being draped around his neck, an April shower descended on the throng. Consequently, Mr. Truman's off-the-cuff speech was short and hurried.

After expressing his thanks for the degree, he said:

"I appreciate most highly the cordial welcome of the Governor of Virginia and the citizens of this great State. It is indeed an honor to receive this degree in such distinguished company."

Asked for Neighborliness

He recalled his visit to Canada last summer, and said he was never more cordially received in his life. He also recalled the friendly receptions he got in Mexico and Brazil.

"In fact," he said, "the Western Hemisphere believes in being good neighbors. I wish all the world could be good neighbors. There isn't any reason why they shouldn't."

The students and the townsfolk gathered on the campus interrupted with applause.

"We have run into two world wars in the defense of liberty," Mr. Truman continued. "We still stand for liberty and for freedom of worship, freedom of conscience and freedom of the individual, things which were fundamental on this campus from the beginning."

He then paid tribute to George Wythe, early chancellor of William and Mary College and a man who deeply influenced the youthful Thomas Jefferson. He said Wythe had never received the credit he deserved and he called him the "greatest law teacher in the history of this hemisphere."

Mr. Truman had heard earlier that the Security Council of the United Nations had agreed to summon Jewish and Arab leaders to the council table in an effort to carry out his suggestion for a truce in Palestine.

He told the assemblage that the unanimous agreement of the Security Council was something to be proud of, and expressed the hope that it was "a portent of things to come."

"This great Nation," he continued, "has never wanted anything but peace in the world. This great Nation has never wanted to be anything but a good neighbor toward every other nation in the world. That is still our theory, that is still our policy."

Applause again arose from the campus, and was repeated once more when the Chief Executive told the students he hoped they would find peace in the world when they became older and took over leadership of the United States.

Governor Tuck, in his speech, recalled that he had welcomed President Truman at Monticello last July. That was some time before Mr. Truman sent his civil rights program to Congress and caused a "revolt" in the South, in which Governor Tuck took a leading part. Governor Tuck said that it was with "equal pleasure" that he welcomed Mr. Truman to Williamsburg today.

He also expressed his pleasure over the visit of Viscount Alexander and Prime Minister MacKenzie King to William and Mary, which he called a "citadel of democracy and an anvil of truth."

In his peroration, Governor Tuck said:

"Freedom, liberty and democracy are not to be had for the asking, without effort and sacrifice. They are to be attained and preserved only by the exercise of constant vigilance and by continuous struggle.

"We understand the fundamental rights and privileges of democracy. Our forefathers, as Virginians and as Americans, sacrificed too much for us to surrender them without a struggle. Virginians are as determined today to strive for the preservation of these imperishable values as were our gallant forbears in the long ago."

Ross Explains Delay

After the awarding of the degrees, President Truman had luncheon at the Williamsburg Inn with Dr. John E. Pomfret, president of William and Mary; Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller, and other notables. He then went on a sightseeing tour.

With the First Lady, Miss Margaret Truman and other members of his entourage, the President started for Yorktown shortly after 4 p. m. The presidential yacht was waiting there to take the party back to Washington.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, on his arrival here this morning, explained why the departure from the Washington Navy Yard was delayed from 6 p. m. to 8 last night. He said it was because Mr. Truman wanted to see certain figures before signing his message on the tax-reduction bill.

Later on, as the yacht was approaching Morgantown, fog over the Potomac became so thick that it was decided to drop anchor. Then, because of a fear that the President might be late if he tried to make the whole trip by water, a decision was made to disembark this morning at Dahlgren. White House limousines were rushed there to bring the party to Williamsburg.

The President is scheduled to arrive in Washington tomorrow morning.

President's Talk at W. & M.

Williamsburg, Va., April 2 (AP).—The text of President Truman's remarks upon receiving a degree at the College of William and Mary:

"Mr. Pomfret, Governor Tuck, Governor of Canada, Mr. Prime Minister, ladies and gentlemen:

"I can't tell you how much I appreciate the honor which this great college has conferred upon me. I appreciate most highly the cordial welcome of the Governor and the citizens of this great State today. It is indeed an honor to receive this degree in such distinguished company.

"It was my privilege last year to pay a visit to Canada. I never was more cordially received in my life. I had that same privilege and the same treatment in Mexico and in Brazil. In fact, the Western Hemisphere believes in being good neighbors. I wish all the world could be good neighbors. There isn't any reason why they should not.

"We ran into two world wars in the defense of liberty. We still stand for liberty and for freedom of worship, freedom of conscience and freedom of the individual, things which were fundamental on this campus from its beginning.

"One great man who was chancellor or this school does not get enough credit for what he did for the United States of America and for the things for which we stand, our Bill of Rights. This is George Wythe, the greatest law teacher, I think, in the history of this hemisphere. Think of his graduates and his pupils, what they contributed to the welfare of the world and to the welfare of the United States of America.

"I hope that we can get those attributes in the whole world.

"Now we have today something to be proud of. There has been a unanimous agreement in the Security Council of the United Nations. I hope that is a portent of things to come.

"This great nation has never wanted anything but peace in the world. This great nation has never wanted to be anything but a good neighbor toward every other nation in the world. That is still her theory, that is still our policy.

"Again I want to thank you very much for this privilege. I can't tell you how much I appreciate it. I hope that when you young people take over the country, as you will some day, and the traditions of this school will be followed, that you will find peace in the world and the things for which the government and the people of the United States stand, along with this good neighbor on the north. Thank you very much."

U. S. to 'Sit Tight' In Berlin Situation

Royall Says Forces Could Hold Out Indefinitely; 10,000 Americans There

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

United States forces in Berlin will sit tight in the face of Russian efforts to squeeze them out, Army Secretary Royall said yesterday, with the assurance they could hold out indefinitely.

Royall told a hurriedly assembled news conference he had just talked with Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States commander in Germany, who said evacuation of Berlin was "unthinkable."

"General Clay," said Royall, "proposes to sit tight in Berlin. In that proposal he has the full support of this department and of the Government."

Royall added that 10,000 Americans, military and civilian, were in Berlin and were remaining calm under pressure of the Russian blockade of rail traffic. He said Clay told him he was supplying his people by air and intended to continue using that method.

Royall explained there was no present food shortage in the American sector. Yesterday, he said, 25 tons of food were flown in for the Americans there and trains with food for the German population were not being molested by the Russians.

He estimated there was sufficient air lift in Europe to move 5000 persons a day out of Berlin if necessary. The 10,000 Americans there, he said, included 2600 women and children, 1933 civilian employes ond 4880 soldiers.

The Army, he said, had no present plans to reinforce the Berlin garrison. He added:

"The decision we made with General Clay is that we will sit tight and hold our position but we will not be provocative."

The United States, Royall said in connection with the Russian insistence on searching U. S. trains moving into Berlin, is willing to give the Russians any documentary information they want on rail traffic.

"But," he declared, "we cannot give the Soviets the right of individual search and control. That would imply the right to control the movement of people and property in our protection."

Asked if he considered the Berlin situation "explosive," Royall replied:

"Whenever you have a situation where a nation fails to carry out commitments and it involves the armed forces it is a very serious situation. The facts speak for themselves."

At an earlier news conference Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett said the State and Army Departments had agreed "since the situation is in the hands of the theater commander" to funnel all information through the Army. He would discuss it no further except to say that "to the best of my knowledge" the matter had not been taken up with the Russian government.

Lovett was concerned during the day with another sore question between this Government and the Soviets: detention in New York harbor of the Russian vessel, the Rossia. It is being held pending disposition of legal claims filed against it by two American citizens and an American shipping firm.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin called on Lovett at noon and spent 35 minutes arguing that the ship belonged to the Russian government and was not subject to laws affecting privately-owned vessels. Lovett was understood to have referred the issue to the Justice Department for a ruling.

Congress, already disturbed by the mounting crisis in Soviet-American affairs, was vocal in its indignation over the turn of events in Berlin.

Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.) demanded a thorough investigation of United States policy governing exports to Russia. It makes no sense, he declared, to spend billions in the effort to stop communism in Europe and at the same time "have our own Government feeding and strengthening the government we are trying to stop."

Revercomb asked an inquiry into all exports to Russia since January 1, 1946, as well as into imports from that country.

Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) called on the State and Army Departments to furnish Congress with all agreements and documents relating to joint occupation of the German capital. He said Congress should be given full details "as to the sector of Berlin occupied by United States forces to determine if rights of either this Nation or its citizens have been infringed."

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who was presiding, said Donnell's resolution would be referred to his own Foreign Relations Committee after a number of Senators had strongly protested the Russian action in Berlin.

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) declared the Russian move showed "the pressing need for prompt military preparedness if actual harm to the American men, women and children in Berlin is to be prevented."

"The Russian tactics of bullying and intimidation in Berlin," Lodge said, "show what a ghastly error and tragic miscalculation were made at the end of the war when we withdrew our troops from what is now the Russian zone."

United States rights to the American sector of Berlin derive from the Yalta Agreement and from agreement in the European Administrative Council. Precise and documentary rights resulted from two rulings of the quadripartite council June 5, 1945, placing the Greater Berlin area under four-power control and establishing means of administration.

Not only was the use of access corridors implicit in these rulings and agreements, but this use was covered specifically in arrangements with the Russians at about the same time. The corridor and air routes were defined at that time and made the subject of memoranda.

Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, chief of staff of the Air Force, said yesterday the United States had about 100 cargo airplanes in Germany, which could carry several hundred tons of supplies daily into Berlin. He pointed out, however, that the rate of supply would be affected by weather conditions.

Asked if the Russians had any anti-aircraft along the corridor, 20 miles wide, used by United States aircraft flying to Tempelhof Airdrome in Berlin, Spaatz said:

"I haven't heard of any along the corridor. We know it is in the (Russian) area, but we don't know where."

He said he knew of no Russian objections so far to American air operations into Berlin.

U. S. Troops Block Soviet Rail Office

threatened "sharper measures" in the political battle for Berlin.

Committees from which the Russians said they were withdrawing included transportaion, communication, economics and public welfare. They asked that the work of the committes be merked with others.

Train Carries 509 Tons

The 54-car American freight train was the first to pass through Soviet controls since they were imposed. It took 40 minutes to clear the Marienborn check point, the Army said.

The U. S. train commander followed usual procedure of handing military waybills on the cargo to Soviet control officials. This method was in use before the present crisis. Apparently no other documentation or inspection was asked. The train contained 509 tons of foodstuffs and other goods for American occupation forces.

If the same policy is followed in the future it will make it unnecessary for American forces in Berlin to be supplied by air. Air traffic would be confined to passengers.

American authorities bypassed the land blockade today by flying in 24 plane-loads of supplies.

Two British freight trains passed Soviet control points and moved toward Berlin from the British zone before the American train was dispatched. The British also sent a military passenger train from Berlin, bound for the British zone. Several members of the staff of Gen. Sir Brian Robertson and 10 armed soldiers were aboard the train.

The Russians have ordered inspection by their own men of all incoming passenger trains and outgoing passenger and freight trains.

The passage of the two British trains was coupled with the disappearance of Soviet border guards in the Soviet sector of the city itself, where traffic was snarled for blocks yesterday.

International automobile traffic also continued without incident to roll past Soviet inspection points along the autobahn, which links the west with Berlin, 100 miles behind the Iron Curtain.

American military personnel and civilians remained calm while United States Air Force transport planes, some still in their war paint and flying in formation, brought 55,000 pounds of food and more than 150 passengers to busy Templehof Airdrome.

It was announced, however, that some food supplies will be rationed in a few days, pending clarification of the supply situation.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American commander, announced there would be no ordered evacuation of the American women and children here.

British officers at Gatow Airport in the British sector said eight special flights brought supplies and passengers from western Germany there today.

French to Start Flights

In Paris the French announced that a French air service also would be started from Baden-Baden in the French zone with one flight a day.

German press reports from the Soviet zone said Russian occupation troops were preparing for large-scale spring maneuvers in an area close to the frontier of the American occupation zone. The French-licensed Kurier said many young soldiers, medium-sized tanks and other equipment had been seen passing through switching stations southwest of Berlin into the Meiningen area, which is about 10 miles from the American border.

Stockpiling Lags in War Materials

The United States is behind schedule in building up its stockpile of critical war materials, the Munitions Board said yesterday.

The report was made by Board Chairman T. J. Hargrave in a letter to Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The board is building up stocks of strategic and critical materials and planning for "any emergency within the next two years," Hargrave said.

But he added: "The stockpile program over a five-year period is behind schedule and we have an unbalanced stockpile."

The speed with which this reserve can be built up depends on the money appropriated by Congress, availability of materials and prices, Hargrave said.

"Money spent on the stockpile is not an expense," he said. "It is a savings account designed to save money and lives."

The board is studying the problem of industrial mobilization. Hargrave said 500 contracts already have been placed on a tentative basis for war supplies. The armed services have received applications from 11,000 other plants.

Hargrave suggested: "It is my personal hope that legislation necessary to implement an economic control program will be prepared and enacted prior to an emergency."

He said he believes the top personnel should be chosen in advance to give them an opportunity to study their jobs.

Meanwhile the Army and Air Force told a House committee they need all Government-built housing near military installations to meet their expanding needs.

The Navy said Thursday it needed all housing around its stations.

The Army and Air Forces spokesmen appeared before the House Public Works Committee which is considering legislation to give all war-built temporary housing to local governments and colleges.

Action in Berlin Brings Demand for Stronger Defenses

Bogota, Colombia, April 2 (AP).—Russia's blockade of Berlin brought demands within the Pan American conference today for a tightening of western hemisphere defense and for a strong stand against communism.

The news from Germany had an immediate impact on the conference deliberations here. Foreign Minister Mario de Diego of Panama told a reporter he thought the hemisphere defense treaty of Rio de Janeiro could be invoked if the situation warranted.

Under the treaty a consultive group, composed of American foreign ministers, could be called together to decide what steps were necessary to defend the hemisphere.

Ratified by 10 Nations

Only 10 countries thus far have ratified the treaty. It requires approval of two-thirds of the 21 American republics. De Diego said that even without the ratification by four other republics he felt the pact could be invoked "at least morally right here in Bogota."

Secretary of State George C. Marshall told the conference yesterday that he hoped the necessary number of ratifications would be available before the end of the Bogota meetings.

Asked whether ratification of the treaty might bring up again the question of United States military bases in Panama for defense of the canal, De Diego said:

"Panama is always willing to listen to new proposals from the United States for bases."

He added that if a real emergency developed his government would be willing to reopen talks at once. Last December the Panamanian parliament rejected an agreement for renewal of United States wartime leases on 14 bases.

De Diego said invocation of the Rio de Janeiro treaty would not require any declaration of war or even a rupture of relations. He cited Article Six and said the consultative body of the American nations could meet to take steps "if the inviolability or integrity of any hemisphere republic is threatened by any extracontinental conflict or by any act or situation which could endanger our hemisphere."

Chilean delegate Juvenal Hernandez said the developments in Berlin may hasten a strong anti-Communist declaration by the American Republics. He is the author of a proposed resolution urging American nations to repress foreign-inspired subversive activity.

Some delegates thought the conference here might be shortened if the German situation worsened.

General's Warning

Kenney Sees All U. S. Open To Red Blow

Nashville, Tenn., April 2 (AP).—Gen. George C. Kenney, strategic air commander, said tonight that "any point in the United States" could be hit by planes now in the hands of "potential enemies." He obviously meant Russia.

Bitterly attacking the Soviet Union as an aggressor that "will not hesitate long, once he decides that he possesses the capability of defeating us," Kenney called for immediate buildup of the U. S. Air Force.

"Be Ready to Fight"

Kenney said "we must be ready to fight at the beginning or we may not get a chance to fight at all."

Of his B-29 superfortresses, he said:

"Our long-range bombers . . . are equal or superior to any such types possessed by any nation anywhere. The crews are superbly trained and ready, but there are not enough of them, and there are no reserves to take their places."

Atomic Bomb Attack

Scorning talk that Russia is backward mechanically, he warned that "a large scale atomic bomb attack could result in the destruction of a dozen of our major cities and a casualty list of millions on the opening day of a future war."

He outlined some facts concerning Russia's resources and reputed productive capacity and said "we must not underestimate our opponent again" as was done with Japan."

London Professor Says Reds Have Atom Bomb

Pargue, Czechoslovakia, April 2 (AP).—Hyman Levy of the University of London faculty said today he is sure Russia has the atom bomb and that, should there be another war, such bombs would fall in Washington as well as Moscow.

Levy said he is here as a guest of the Communist-controlled Ministry of Information.

2 B-29's Fly 4600 Mi. With 5-Ton Load

Two standard B-29 bombers last week flew under combat conditions to targets 2300 miles from their bases and returned, Air Secretary Symington said yesterday.

Symington pointed out that the two bombers, each carrying a 5-ton bomb load, could have flown 4600 miles on a straight course bombing a target on the way and landing at another friendly base. On landing, he added, one B-29 still carried 800 gallons of fuel and the other 1000 gallons, in both cases more than the required margin for safety.

Symington said "undoubtedly" there would be 5000-mile bombers in the future "but not now." As a matter of fact, he explained, the Air Force was obtaining "fantastic" increases in speed and range by changes in models in production.

The real need, he emphasized, was for numbers of aircraft, for "a lot of fast big airplanes to bomb and a lot of small fast airplanes to fight."

"Which," he added, "we haven't got."

The bombers employed in last week's tests, Symington said, did not employ refuelling in flight and did not carry extra fuel tanks in their bomb bays. Nor, he said, was either airplane altered in any way to increase its range.

ERP Bill Sent White House Only Day Late

from the executive departments, was ready to handle the business of ERP during the first 30-day period, as provided by Congress. It will not have to wait for congressional appropriations, for Congress provided an immediate advance of a billion dollars from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as soon as the bill became law.

Nitze to Head Staff

The temporary staff will be headed by Paul Nitze of the State Department, who did an outstanding job in shaping the program in its early stages. Officials now working on the Greek-Turkish program and on interim aid will be thrown together in the new temporary organization, Lovett said.

The sixteen recipient countries have already received a monster questionnaire asking them to estimate their needs and their own production in the first quarter-year of the program. The figures will then be "screened" and revised to take account of the supplies available in the United States. Petroleum allocations, for example, may have to be cut because of shortages here, and substitutions may be needed in other types of exports, such as articles made of steel.

In any case, the new administrator, whoever he may be, will have a program in inital operation when he has been confirmed by the Senate and can start his job.

Congressional leaders have already been assured that President Truman hopes to send them a nomination within twenty-four hours after signing the bill.

2 Issues Ironed Out

In the final rush to settle Senate-House differences in conference—an effort that kept the conference committee in session 10 hours on Thursday—important agreements were made on two of the knottiest and most controversial items in the bill.

The first was rejection of the House position that military aid to China should be provided in the same way, and in the same section of the bill, as military aid to Greece. During the hearings and the debates Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) was a tireless champion of the idea that the Communist army in China was a part of the same threat represented by the guerilla army in northern Greece.

China Military Aid Cut Out

The Senate conferees insisted, however, that to bracket the two into the same section of the bill would involve the United States in limitless military commitments in China. They insisted (1) that military aid to China be taken from the Greek-Turkish section of the bill and (2) that no specific mention of military aid to China be made at all.

They won their case, with the result that the bill now calls for a 125-million-dollar grant to the Chinese government in addition to 338 million in economic help. The bill leaves it up to the Chinese government to use the grant as it sees fit. If it decides to buy military supplies with the money, the United States will assume no responsibility for what may be done with them.

On another point, however, the House conferees won a partial success. This was part of the so-called Mundt amendment to the House bill, directing the administrator to refuse delivery to western Europe of commodities that would be used to produce industrial goods for eastern Europe. The Senate conferees struggled to get it out of the bill, but failed.

It means that if the United States, for example, forbids the export of machine tools to Russia, and if Belgium or some other western European country is found to be exporting machine tools made from American steel, the administrator can cut off shipments of steel to Belgium "insofar as practicable."

The words "insofar as practicable" mean that the administrator will have some leeway. In any case, the authors of the bill did not intend it to force abrogation of the present British, Belgian and Swedish trade agreements with Russia. They simply wanted added safeguards against the improper uses of American aid.

Originally the Mundt amendment also gave the Administrator virtual veto power over export licenses. This part of it was softened, however, and its veto power removed. As the final bill stands, it provides that if the Administrator feels any exports to eastern Europe are "inconsistent" with the purposes of the Act, he shall "advise" the Government official who has authority to issue export licenses. If the two cannot adjust their differences by consultation, the case will go to the President for final decision.

Czar's Sister, Fearing Reds, Quits Denmark

Copenhagen, April 2 (AP).—Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the late Czar of Russia, Nicholas II, will leave Denmark in May after 28 years of exile here.

Her husband, Col. Nicholai Kulikovsky, said the decision to leave was made "because we fear that the Russians will force their way into Denmark some day. He said the family would go to Great Britain and later to Canada, if visas were granted.

Veto Message

President Truman's veto of the tax reduction bill had been expected. The action of both Houses of Congress in voting to override the veto had also been expected. Most of the arguments against tax reduction advanced in the veto message have become familiar from much repetition, and the President must have realized the futility of restating them in view of the strong congressional sentiment for tax reduction. If tax reduction should result in budgetary deficits, as the President predicts, it will, of course, become necessary to provide new sources of revenue to make up deficiencies. It is none too soon, therefore, to be looking forward and making plans for a general and long overdue reform of the Federal tax system with a view to eliminating inequities as well as raising revenue.

Incidentally larger revenues and higher tax rates do not always go hand in hand. Indeed, reductions in the confiscatorily high individual tax rates of the upper income brackets would probably result in an increase of revenue. For when taxes are so high as to impair or destroy the individual's incentive to take business risks, economic expansion is retarded and the Government is deprived of potential revenues that would flow from such expansion. In short, there is a point beyond which increased tax rates cease to be effective revenue producers and actually cost the Government money. That is a fact to keep in mind if Congress should be compelled to look for new sources of tax revenue in the near future.

Aid Without Strings

Before passing the aid-to-education bill, the Senate rejected an amendment that would have forbidden the use of Federal funds for the support or benefit of any sectarian or private school. The Senate also rejected another amendment that would have permitted the States to use Federal-aid funds to reimburse nonpublic schools for expenses incurred for transporting pupils, for school health examinations and related services and purchases of nonreligious supplies, equipment and books. Senator Taft, author of the bill, opposed both these amendments, but he raised no objection to an amendment admittedly designed to prevent attempts to withhold funds from States with segregated schools by attaching riders to appropriation bills.

The rejected amendments would have entailed interference by the Federal Government with the school systems of the States and were inconsistent with the declared purpose of the bill to avoid any supervision or control over State educational institutions, curricula or methods of instruction. The accepted amendment, on the other hand, is in accord with the general purpose of the bill, which is to leave the States free to determine their educational policies without dictation from the Federal Government. Thus States' rights are protected, and no State receiving aid is prevented from adapting its own educational system to the needs and preferences of its people. When questions arise as to the legal or constitutional right of States to make contributions to sectarian schools or to establish separate schools for whites and Negroes, the courts are the proper agencies to decide such issues. As a matter of fact, the Supreme Court has already imposed restrictions on State educational appropriations benefiting sectarian schools, although as Senator Taft points out, there are many incidental services on which there is no clear ruling.

The aim of the present bill is to promote equalization of educational opportunities by means of Federal grants that would enable the poorer States to provide better teachers, buildings and equipment. Some States in greatest need of funds to supplement pitifully inadequate outlays per pupil are spending a larger proportion of their income for education than other States classified among the heavy spenders. Quite a number of the poorer States are also comparatively rich in children. The differences in financial status are too great to be overcome by local effort. Equality of educational opportunities, therefore, cannot be achieved without the assistance of the Federal Government, and the Taft bill is only a beginning. Such aid will be appreciated and will produce the maximum amount of good only if the gift is made without attempting, as Senator Cooper says, "to substitute the opinion and the judgment of the Congress for that of the people of the States."

Investment In Freedom

America's investment in freedom is now a reality. Nations that are living in fear of ideological infiltration or military aggression now know that they have the active aid as well as the sympathetic interest of the United States. That is the most heartening and constructive fact in the whole sphere of international relations since the war. It will inspire tougher resistance to Soviet totalitarianism in Italy. It will in some measure relieve the pressure in Scandinavia and bring new hope for recovery and stability in Great Britain and France. We have often pointed out that the European Recovery Program is only one of several steps required to underwrite the freedom won in World War II. But it is a remarkable indication of the United States' good intentions, and we suspect that it will be accepted as such wherever people living in fear are free to express themselves.

The Washington Post has felt that it was a mistake to include funds for China in the ERP bill. We still think so. We are pleased to recognize, however, that the conference committee substantially improved the aid-to-China provisions that came out of the House. The House had brought China under the Greek-Turkish Assistance Act. Had this provision stood, it would have created the impression that the United States was committing itself to the defense and rehabilitation of China as we are committed to the defense and rehabilitation of Greece. We should have assumed, at least in the eyes of the world, far-reaching obligations, which probably could not have been carried out. At least that serious error was corrected before the ERP bill was finally approved and sent to the President.

In the final measure aid to China comes under a separate title. To be sure, that title includes Representative Judd's stump speech about the evolution of liberty and free institutions in China and assumes that "internal peace and economic stability in China" are "essential for lasting peace and prosperity in the world." This conglomeration of unrealistic statements obviously had no place in the bill. But the significant point is that China has been put into a category by itself. China is to be given a sop while recovery efforts go forward in other parts of the world where the prospect for recovery and the development of free institutions is more hopeful. But it is a sop that does not unload the burden of Chinese corruption and military ventures on the United States.

Especially hopeful, too, is the provision creating a Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction in China, to be composed of two Americans and three Chinese. The function of this agency will be to carry out a program of reconstruction in China's rural areas. Apparently it will put means and energy behind the constructive movement for which James Yen ("Yen of China") has been pleading in this country. Certainly this aspect of the program can be made directly beneficial to the long-suffering Chinese people.

On the whole, the compromise between the Senate and House places ERP's emphasis where it ought to be—on recovery of war-torn lands where people are still living in the shadow of tyranny. That is its great significance. We hope that every citizen realizes its momentous commitment of both the executive and legislative branches of the Government and both the Republican and Democratic Parties to the great task of cooperative protection of the free world.

Federal Pay Raise

Salaries of Federal employes under the Classification Act have lagged far behind increases in living costs, which have risen nearly 70 per cent since 1940. Consequently, the case for further Federal salary increases has ceased to be debatable. It would be poor economy as well as rank injustice for the Government to refuse to make the compensatory adjustments required to bring Federal wages and salary payments into line with payments for comparable work in private employment.

The question at issue, then, is not whether Federal salaries should be raised but how the increases should be made and how much should be granted. In our opinion, neither of the bills under consideration provides an acceptable solution. The bill sponsored by Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee is open to objection because it provides for flat rate increases, makes no provision for reclassification, and retains the $10,000 ceiling on salaries of employes in the classified service. The bill just approved by the Senate Civil Service Committee is objectionable because the increases in salary scales are so large that, as Senator Flanders fears, with good reason, it might be used as an argument for another round of wage increases in private industry. The Senate bill also raises the salaries of postal employes by a flat $800 as compared with an average of $650 for other Federal workers. This preferential treatment of postal employes is without justification and is due to the fact that they are strongly organized and in a position to put political pressure on Congress. On the other hand, the Senate bill provides for a much-needed overhauling of the Classification Act to bring jobs and salaries into proper relationship. And it also raises the ceiling on salaries of $15,000.

It seems clear that the practice of voting flat increases in salaries while retaining a rigid system of salary classification is unfair and demoralizing. This short-sighted policy of narrowing the gap between the salaries of top officials and their subordinates endangers service morale. Retention of the $10,000 top salary under the Classification Act has resulted in the loss of many of the Government's most competent civil servants. It has also seriously weakened the incentive to work for promotion to positions entailing heavy responsibilities without compensating additions to pay.

The various bills now under consideration provide only partial and unsatisfactory answers to the problem in hand. However, the Senate bill, with its provision for a new and simplified classification system, could easily be made acceptable by substituting a more modest scale of wage increases (as originally proposed by Senator Flanders) and dropping the provision favoring postal employes.

New Air Chief

When Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg resigned as director of the central intelligence group a year ago, it was assumed that he was being groomed as the next head of the Air Force, Thus his nomination to succeed Gen. Carl A. Spaatz upon the latter's retirement comes as no surprise. General Vandenberg is admirably equipped for his new job. Though he is not a youngster—he is 49—he is outstanding among the younger progressive thinkers of the Air Force. During the war he acquired a reputation as a brilliant planner, but he did not fight the war from a desk. He saw plenty of combat, and his all-round knowledge of Air Force requirements will aid him in his new post. He will be helped, too, by the confidence and esteem with which he is held in Washington.

As one of the few remaining veterans of the days when the Air Force was a mere fledgling, General Spaatz has too full a record to require much comment. He has grown up with the air arm. He served in both World Wars, and as air commander successively in North Africa, Europe and the Pacific in the recent conflict he had a significant part in the victory. Air Force Secretary Symington paid him the tribute of terming him the "world's greatest air strategist." It is no disparagement of his abilities to say that his preference ran more to action than to paper work. At 56 General Spaatz is by no means an old man, but his desire to take up less arduous duties is certainly understandable. His career of devoted service merits the gratitude of the Nation.

Upon General Vandenberg now falls a tremendous responsibility. The Air Force has been recognized as the basis of our defense and has been accorded the separate status it warranted. But it does not stand alone. General Vandenberg's job will call not only for imagination but also for restraint and for a demonstration in practical terms of the unification Congress has legislated.

Latin Subversives

The spearhead of communism in Latin America is more than just an imaginary threat. Means of combating this threat have a proper place, we think, on the agenda of the Bogota conference, and we are glad that Secretary Marshall's move to include such discussions has received general approval. There seems to be a sensible recognition among a number of the delegates that the struggle against Communist infiltration is larger than a mere battle of ideologies.

As a matter of fact, communism already has some alarming toeholds in the Western Hemisphere and thus becomes a military as well as a social problem. Cuba, for example, is often regarded as the center of Communist activity in the Americas. The Communists there are powerful in government as well as in labor unions. The civil war now going on in Costa Rica has Communist overtones, for it was precipitated by the refusal of the Communist-supported government to recognize its elected successor. In Chile and Brazil the Communists have considerable following. The Communists in Colombia made their presence felt at the opening of the Bogota conference through posters depicting Secretary Marshall as a Nazi.

Whether or not any unified approach can be evolved for meeting the problem, the delegates at Bogota can usefully compare notes. One thing such a discussion is likely to show is the impossibility of a simple solution for the reason that the Communists employ different tactics in different places. In several Latin-American countries they are allied with reaction. Nicaraguan Dictator Somoza is credited with aiding the Costa Rican Communists; outwardly at least, the Peron government in Argentina has been kind to them; and in Brazil they are playing footie with the ousted Getulio Vargas, Nor is it likely that legislation to outlaw the Communists will be effective; such a law in Brazil has not ended the problem but in some ways has accentuated it. There is one fact, however, upon which most delegates probably will be able to agree: communism finds its most fertile fields in pauper wages, squalid living and health conditions and lack of education. It is in these areas that the most effective resistance can be built, and it is particularly appropriate that the matter should be examined at a conference which is giving special emphasis to economic problems as they relate to the common defense.

"Freedom And Security"

The issue presented by the prosecutions in the Barsky case just decided by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals is not whether the Government of the United States has the right to protect itself against those who would by illegal means change the form of government, because no one of reasonable intelligence will, I assume, question that right. But it is a question of the methods to be used and the means employed to that end. Under the law against conspiracy there has always existed a means by which the Government can protect itself against any group which might attempt to change the form of government contrary to methods provided in the Constitution.

To require anyone to answer questions propounded by members of a committee of Congress, when the purpose of such questions is to elicit what legitimate organizations the person might be a member of and to take the liberty of the person for refusal to answer, is to destroy completely the form of government established under the Constitution. This is true because by this method Congress is permitted to bypass all constitutional guarantees by which the liberty of all persons is supposed to be protected. It is exactly the same system as used in countries that are governed by the will of those who rule by force.

If we just imagine the methods which would be used in Washington if the present regime were actually composed of members of the Communist Party and then attempt to compare such methods with those now being employed by the members of the Un-American Activities Committee, we shall be able to get the proper perspective on this whole business.

Federal Pay Raises

The way that the proposed Federal pay raises have been handled is a disgrace. Among the many inequities that might be pointed out are the following:

If, as alleged, the present measure is a "cost of living bill," it should raise the salaries of all Federal workers to the entire amount that the cost of living is increased and not a mere pittance of that amount.

The bills, scores of them, have been kicked around for months, although the amount of the rise of the cost of living is ascertainable and has been determined by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

If, as alleged, the reason why the postal workers are to get a larger raise than classified workers is because of their strong labor organization, this would seem not only unjust but un-American as well. Federal workers should not be forced to join a labor organization to obtain their just desserts at the hands of their own Government.

The raising of salaries is not simply desirable but is necessary to the proper functioning of the Government. Thousands of employes are leaving the Government to accept better jobs, and many efficient employes are not interested in Government jobs because they can make much more elsewhere. FEDERAL WORKER.

AAUW Membership

Several news items have appeared recently in regard to the demand of the National Board of the American Association of University Women that all local branches admit colored female graduates of accredited colleges. Instead of frankly stating its case it is hiding behind a by-law which is said to require the admission of any woman graduate from any accredited college.

If the National AAUW has such a law admitting all women graduates from accredited colleges it had better get busy and change it instead of trying to force, in a totalitarian way, local branches to conform to it. If all can come in then no one can be thrown out no matter what she does so long as she has a degree.

Economic Planning

Combination is necessary, and therefore inevitable. Any enterprise which is to be "efficiently" and "economically" conducted must be publicly owned. Economic planning is necessary here, and the "fewer managements," the "more effective" will be the planning, so Mr. Benjamin C. Marsh of Peoples Lobby, Inc. writes in his letter of March 23.

The "inevitable" logical extension of the "fewer managements, more effective planning" theme, would be "one manager, one plan; perfection."

That was Hitler's idea, also Stalin's. As a matter of fact, doesn't the law of diminishing returns become operative at some point in this "combination-planning-perfection" pipe dream?

UMT Opposition

You recently carried a news item which cited Cardinal Dougherty's opposition to universal military training. This was followed in a day or two with a "thumbs down" by Albert Einstein. The opinions of these two gentlemen on this subject are worth no more than those of countless other men. Their opinions are newsworthy only because these gentlemen are preeminent in other fields.

The Cardinal sums up his opposition in nine points which can easily be boiled down to three: (1) UMT subjects little Willie to bad influences. He may become bad. (2) Some of the officers are very, very bad men. (3) It would cost a lot, and besides it isn't necessary because of air power.

To me these arguments are specious. If little Willie hasn't developed basic character by the time he is 19, I fear that little can be done for him. It is true that some officers are bad. It is equally true that the vast majority are fine. In the field of the military air power vs. foot soldiers vs. sea power vs. the atom bomb, I just can't go along with the Cardinal. I prefer to put more trust in the opinions of those who have made this field their life's work.

And now, shoemakers all, let's stick to our lasts. J. C. NESSER.

In a letter to the editor of March 12, Mr. Edward Mitchell made a statement that "the Catholics do not want to pay one sixth of the taxes to support the public schools they do not use." I would like to ask Mr. Mitchell why the Catholics do not use the public schools.

China's Need For Realism

While admitting that monetary stabilization and elimination of communism were vital to China's recovery, Mr. Y. H. Ho, in his letter of March 13, felt that I had not emphasized sufficiently the need of government reforms which he considered China's more pressing prerequisite today.

Reform in the sense of improvement is desirable at all times. But reform, like democracy or liberalism, if utilized as a political catchword to excuse Communist brutalities and despoliation in China or elsewhere, to exalt the intrigues of political turncoats or disgruntled warlords, and in general, to confuse issues, does not merit serious attention. Bearing in mind the critical conditions that prevail in China today. I think it is utter unrealistic to regard political reforms, however desirable in the long-run, as more pressing now than stopping Communist rampage and destruction and working out some monetary stabilization measure to ease the lot of the majority in our country.

Mr. Ho's allusions appear to me needlessly one-sided and not entirely authenticated. For example, he failed to mention government projects such as the Lohui Canal in Shensi recently completed after 15 years of labor which irrigates 83,000 acres of farmland or the 9000-acre forestation program proceeding in Honan to prevent floods, or the rapid establishment by the government of over 200 cooperatives in areas retaken from the Communists in Kiangsu, Anhwei, Shantung and Hopei. While extolling Communist virtues, he did not even refer to some government endeavors, successful or partially successful, in certain areas at reducing land rents, land reclamation and distribution, and at sponsoring fair-rental contracts. He described China's first general election as "farcical in the extreme." Let me remind Mr. Ho that it took this great American republic 30 years fully to implement the American Constitution.

Mr. Ho should know that an estimated two million Communists on the march have not been an unmixed blessing to the war-exhausted Chinese people, farmers or otherwise. Aside from their long and growing record of destruction and brutalities, it is not illogical to assume that unproductive Communists have also to be fed and clothed! Mr. Ho might have usefully offered some explanation on why an estimated 33 million refugees, mostly peasants and their families, have chosen to run away from their alleged Communist benefactors.

I am afraid Mr. Ho's enthusiasm and admiration for the chameleon-like career of the Democratic League are not shared by too many of his fellow countrymen. Mr. Ho somehow failed to mention that this interesting group of "liberals" in Hongkong reached some startling decisions in the January conference which he claimed he had attended. Apart from denouncing the National Government, American "imperialism" was roundly condemned, and close collaboration with the Chinese Communists and friendship for Soviet Russia were proclaimed. Of course, there was the usual heart-warming and laudable solicitude for the welfare of Chinese peasants.

It may have escaped Mr. Ho's attention that on February 18, a group of nonpartisan Chinese professors, in an open letter to the American people said: "Whether we like this government or not, the fact remains that any weakening of it under the present situation will be detrimental to the future of Chinese democracy and independence, for Communist control would be the only alternative."

In the pressing and dangerous circumstances in which China is situated today, Mr. Ho will, I am afraid, find more Chinese indorsing and supporting the stand of the professors who are facing the realities daily on the spot, and not preaching political reforms from British-controlled Hongkong.

Kings Versus Commissars

By Malvina Lindsay

Royal Pawns

THE FIRST refugee royalty from the Communist steamroller, Prince Michael of Romania and his mother, Queen Helen, are winding up their visit to the United States. Prince Charles, Regent of Belgium, comes to Washington next week. Don Juan, the Prince of Asturias, pretender to the Spanish throne, is in New York.

A decade ago another trek of royalty to this country was under way, set in motion by Hitler and the Nazis. Then as now political strategy was involved. The royal visitors needed American backing. When war developed, England and the United States could use royal refugees advantageously because of the following they held in their Nazi-occupied kingdoms.

Now it is being asked: What value are royal puppets in halting Communist aggression? Can kings and queens keep a hold on their subjects through tradition and emotion while Communist propagandists are depicting them as feudalistic oppressors?

IN GREECE handsome King Paul and his glamour girl queen, Frederika, perform the ancient rites of royalty and espouse good works from an unstable throne, while Communist guerillas promise hungry peasants bread and land, and an end to such "decadence." In this country Americans crowd to see the attractive young King Michael and his regal mother, while Ana Pauker promises Romania the fruits of "democracy" and future freedom from the "yoke of monarchy."

The strong woman of Romania, the shrewd, ruthless foreign minister, is a symbol of the force against which both royalty and western democracy find themselves pitted. In facing such an opponent royalty might seem a medieval lancer opposite a machine gun. The difference between it and the latest force to be taking over European thrones is epitomized in the contrast between kings and commissars (as they were once known), between Queen Helen and Ana Pauker.

Kings and queens, princes and princesses on their American tours have dramatized gentility—which now possibly may be too effete a force to survive. In looks, attitudes, manners they have followed the traditional royal pattern. The men, unobtrusive and well tailored, have bowed with easy grace and waved to cheering throngs with practiced aplomb. The women, erect, poised, gracious, dressed with costly simplicity and the inevitable real pearls, have smiled miles of impersonal smiles, spoken well-chosen words in cultivated tones.

Unfailingly these royal visitors have looked cheerful and undaunted even when tragedy was hounding them. Onlookers knew their emotions were disciplined, that they would never raise their voices, make a scene, or do the wrong thing publicly. Theirs was the responsibility, impressed through years of training, to express correctness and dignity, to suggest ceremony and romance.

THE AGGRESSIVE, brusque Communist leaders have brought a different pattern of behavior to their contacts with the Western world. They have scorned the proper manners and the genteel attitudes of both kings and diplomats. The subjects of these kings, the Communists declaim, need bread and land rather than royal ceremony and castles—such as the late Queen Marie of Romania furnished and landscaped so beautifully in her country. Royalty is all washed up so far as influence is concerned, its successors in Romania seem convinced, else they would have continued to use Michael as their front.

But this is open to question. Americans, untrained in any deference to royalty, have thronged to see and to cheer all the visiting kings, queens, princes, princesses, dukes and duchesses that have come. Their welcome to Michael showed they were not even yet jaded with royal personages. The British, with a Socialist government, are still stanch in their regard for the royal house. Princess Elizabeth's wedding demonstrated that not only they but much of the world still responds to royal tradition and glamour.

Hero worship is a difficult trait to eradicate, as welcomes to generals and adulation of movie stars prove. The Russians had to deify Stalin in lieu of a king. They may find in their European adventure that royalty, even though generally deposed, is not yet defunct.

Playground Hours

I can't help thinking, while reading the various articles about children being killed and injured, that the playgrounds in Washington close at 4 p. m., forcing the children to play in the streets. It is a grim paradox that the very purpose for which the playgrounds were created is being defeated so that the supervisors and caretakers may have a normal working day instead of one beneficial to their charges. It certainly sounds absurd that the grounds should be closed in the late afternoon and all Saturday afternoon. Obviously, they are of little use when the schools are in session.

I come from another State and I know such a situation wouldn't be tolerated there. The playgrounds there are never locked and the city's equipment can be used at specific times which are set up for the general good. The Washington playgrounds have high fences around them and are locked when unattended. I think that the city could well afford to hire some part-time college students to supervise when the regular attendants can't be there.

Republican Middle Western Split

MADISON, WIS. — By this time it is hardly news that there are deep divisions in the Democratic Party which threaten to split it asunder. But the Republican Party is also split down the middle in a feud that has stirred a partisanship almost as bitter as that within Democratic ranks.

Childs

Here in Wisconsin the isolationist, America-first wing of the GOP has rallied under the banner of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. While their strength may be exaggerated because they are so vociferous and so passionately partisan, many observers believe that a majority of MacArthur delegates may be elected.

That is one reason why Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York felt compelled to make a last-minute change in his plans and invade Wisconsin. Until recently Dewey and his advisers had felt that the backlog of his popularity was sufficient to carry him through. In the presidential primary in both '40 and '44, the New York Governor swept this State.

The geography of the Republican split is revealing. Essentially it is between the East and the Middle West.

There is, however, an even broader geographical division. On one side are those who believe that American strength should go to build up China and Japan, if we are to send aid abroad at all. General MacArthur, either as candidate or symbol, is the logical champion of this group.

ON THE OTHER side are the Republicans who have actively supported the European Recovery Program in the belief that America's No. 1 interest is in reconstructing western Europe. Their leader in Congress is Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg. Among them are such distinguished men as Henry L. Stimson and Robert P. Patterson, former Secretaries of War.

The division is not, of course, hard and fast. Not long ago Governor Dewey threw out an aid-to-China appeal in one of his speeches. This was a significant recognition of the political power of the Asia faction from one who is sensitive to shifting political winds.

A potent figure in the Republican Party in the Middle West is Col. Robert R. McCormick, of The Chicago Tribune. His men, Gov. Dwight Green and Senator C. Wayland Brooks, will head the Illinois delegation to the Philadelphia convention, and his will be the decisive voice over 56 votes.

In a talk I had with him in Chicago, Colonel McCormick told me he would not support the Republican ticket if either Dewey, Vandenberg or Harold Stassen were nominated at Philadelphia. These three men he puts down as creatures of Eastern financial-corporate wealth. In the Chicago Tribune, with its far-reaching influence, he denounces all three, and particularly Vandenberg, violently day after day.

If he bolts his party, the choleric colonel and those who feel as he does could scarcely support President Truman as the nominee of the Democratic Party. But McCormick is acutely aware of the meaning of the Southern revolt. Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia would, for example, be a perfect candidate for the colonel.

COLONEL McCORMICK'S avowed choice in the Republican Party is Senator Robert A. Taft. His second choice is General MacArthur, with whom he had long and intimate talks during his visit to the Orient last year. MacArthur rolled out the red carpet for his old friend, treating him like a visiting potentate.

Taft is not a candidate in the Wisconsin primary. He is, however, a candidate in Nebraska, where he has the backing of Senator Hugh Butler and Butler's powerful machine.

This suggests an interesting possibility. Should Taft win in Nebraska and MacArthur in Wisconsin, the Middle West wing of the GOP would have two candidates.

The pressure would be strong then to combine forces behind one of these men. The rumor has long persisted that at the proper time the MacArthur strength will be thrown behind Taft, perhaps by the general himself in a dramatic act of renunciation.

With the Middle West behind one candidate and the majority of the Eastern delegates behind another, the Republican convention could develop into a long-drawn-out struggle. There is, however, one restraint that the Democrats do not have. The Republican hope of victory in November — confidence and desire—will work as a powerful amalgam to fuse these divergent factions.

Government Files Draft Bill

Services Committee, a strong supporter of both the draft and UMT, told reporters he was opposed to some provisions of the Administration's draft proposal. He said he would introduce his own bill—involving "a lot of changes"—next Thursday or Friday, and open hearings about April 12.

General Eisenhower appeared before the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday afternoon to urge approval of the military expansion program before Congress.

The spacious Senate caucus room was packed, as Ike entered in uniform. Newsreel and television cameras clicked and the crowd applauded as he took the witness stand. For nearly an hour he outlined America's security needs, emphasizing the importance of both the draft and UMT.

"I believe these United States are the greatest force for good in the world," he declared, "We've got to keep strong."

Speaker Martin told The Washington Post he considered the world situation so critical that America's military forces must be built up to strength immediately. Above all else, he said, Congress must guard the Nation's security.

"With a fellow like Joe Stalin loose on the world there isn't any time to lose," Martin added.

The House GOP chief's indorsement of the draft made approval of the proposal likely. By the same token, his suggestion that UMT could go over was considered significant.

Approval of both measures by the Senate Armed Services Committee is expected some time next week. Hearings are being wound up today. There is considerable support for both in the Senate, while until now, the House has been a question mark.

Martin said he also favored a sharp and rapid increase in America's airpower. The National Guard also must be strengthened, he said.

Proud He's a "Brass Hat"

Eisenhower, who is on terminal leave pending his retirement, apparently wore his uniform to emphasize the point with which he opened his testimony.

"I am a brass hat," he declared, "and I say it with pride."

He went on to hit those who attacked the Nation's military leaders and said that "militarists" want to take over the country. The Army always has been a bulwark of democracy and always stood for the dominance of civil power over the military, Ike declared.

The United States "must face the facts of life" and realize it must be strong to combat an ideology which "seks to destroy democracy."

Continuing, Ike stressed the great importance of having "allies who think as we do. It is impossible for a country even as strong as we are to live as an island of democracy in a sea of dictatorship," he said.

Urging passage of both UMT and the draft as a unified measure, he said the former is required to show our allies we mean business. Nothing we do on an emergency basis or in war convinces the world of this, said Eisenhower.

In succession, the former chief of staff took up and answered these arguments against the proposals:

(1) Atomic weapons make existing forces obsolete—a war within the next three to five years, at least, will be much like the last, he said.

(2) Air power can do the job—bombers need fighter plane protection and must have bases within a thousand miles of enemy centers—said Ike. Bases required soldiers to seize and hold them and a strong Navy to supply them. A division overseas must have 600 to 700 tons a day in supplies.

GOP Rivals' Trails Cross

however, that he did not believe the Michigan Senator's views were similar now.

Dewey, making his pitch for support of farmers, told a meeting at Eau Claire:

"The Government promised certain prices on hogs, poultry, eggs and other crops and then pulled the plug out from under them."

He declared to about 1000 who attended the rally sponsored by the Wisconsin Farmers for Dewey Committee that prosperity in the city and on the farms go hand in hand, and added: "We must make sure that our National Government never permits the misery and farm mortgage foreclosures of the 1930s to recur."

Dewey sidestepped discussion of the recent oleomargarine tax repealer efforts—a hot subject in America's dairyland. He did not take a stand, but did explain New York legislation suspending the ban for one year against oleo in public and tax-supported institutions.

Dewey went by automobile to Appleton for an address tonight, stopping briefly at Stevens Point en route.

Stassen appeared in the same place at Racine where Dewey spoke yesterday and before a crowd of about the same size, about 2000.

The former Minnesota Governor reiterated that the Communist Party should be outlawed by congressional action, and asserted the shipment to Russia of anything that can be used in war must be stopped.

Taft Today Opens Bid For Missouri, Nebraska

By the United Press

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) headed into the Midwest last night, seeking Missouri and Nebraska support for his bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

He scheduled three speeches in Missouri today—two in St. Cahrles and one in St. Louis. From St. Louis he will swing into Nebraska for a three-day trip.

Missouri will send 33 delegates to the Republican National Convention. Twenty-six will be chosen in district conventions this month and seven at large will be selected by the State GOP convention May 1. Nebraska will elect its 15 convention delegates in a primary April 13.

Two are generally tabbed as suporters of New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

Another leaned to Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Iowa GOP Selects 23; Urges Defense Measures

Des Moines, April 2 (AP).—Iowa Republicans, in resolutions adopted at their State convention today, declared the party favors peace but asked Congress to provide adequate men and material to protect the Nation.

The convention selected a 23-member delegation to the GOP national convention. The delegation is uninstructed.

The Des Moines Register, in a copyrighted sory, disclosed results of a secret straw ballot it took in which 853 delegates, or two thirds o fthose attending, listed their presidential choices.

The Register said the delegates gave Harold Stassen of Minnesota 405 votes, or 48.7 per cent of those polled. Behind Stassen, in order, were: Dewey, 172 votes, or 20.7 per cent; Vandenberg, 118 votes, or 14.2 per cent; Taft, 85 votes, or 10.2 per cent; Eisenhower, 18 votes; Speaker Joe Martin, 14 votes; Warren of California, 12 votes; General MacArthur, 8 votes.

Truman Urged to Quit Race for Draft of 'Ike'

Manchester, N. H., April 2 (AP).—A Truman-pledged New Hampshire Democrat today called on the President to get out of the 1948 race to leave his place open for a "popular draft" of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Democratic National Committeeman Harry Carlson said in a statement:

"I feel that in these circumstances Mr. Truman will see in the candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower not merely a political victory in '48 for the party of democracy but a worldwide victory for hope and peace over the forces of fear and war."

Carlson was one of the 20 Truman-pledged Democratic national convention delegates elected in the Nation's first primary in New Hampshire last month.

Grain Exports Exceed Hopes, May Top October Goal in June

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

American grain exports to famine-threatened nations abroad will total at least 560 million bushels, by the end of the crop year, June 30.

Of this vast amount—approximately the same as last year's all-time record for any nation in history—475 and probably 485 million bushels will be wheat. A total of 90 million bushels of coarse grains already has been bought for shipment.

This prediction was made on the highest Government level yesterday, as the Production and Marketing Administration announced its grain export allocations for next month.

The May figure was set at 31,333,000 bushels (838,000 long tons); of which 30,613,000 bushels will be wheat and wheat flour, and the remaining 720,000 bushels grain sorghums.

Minimum Goal Passed

The May allocations bring the total exports for the first eleven months above the 520 million bushels set by Agriculture Secretary Clinton P. Anderson and State Department officials last January as the minimum goal for the year.

Definite figures on total wheat shipments for the year will be established by the Cabinet Food Committee next Saturday. The committee is made up of the Secretaries of Agriculture, State and Commerce. The Washington Post was told last night that both Secretaries Marshall and Harriman will return from the Pan-American Conference at Bogata, Colombia, in time to take part in the session.

Good News Due on Wheat Crop

Preparatory work has already progressed to where a minimum of 475 million bushels of wheat and 90 million bushels of coarse grains has been assured. Next Friday the first estimate of the winter wheat crop will be made. If it is as optimistic as top Agriculture officials expect at present, the wheat program will be set at 485 million bushels.

Tht would bring total exports to 575 million bushels, five million above the goal set last October 3 by President Truman when he called upon the country for voluntary rationing of grain (through Meatless Tuesdays and Poultryless and Eggless Thursdays).

Definite announcement of the revised goal is scheduled for a week from Sunday. It will come during the two weeks session of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization at which representatives of 55 nations—including virtually all the smaller countries behind the Russian Iron Curtain—will consider the world food situation. The FAO meetings will begin Monday.

Italian Quota Cut Sharply

The PMA announcement yesterday set the quotas for the 11-month period at 521 million bushels. The quota for Italy—one of the major shortage areas being supplied by the United States—was cut sharply from the quota for April. The May allocation is 40,000 long tons compared with 108,000 for April.

"However," the PMA statement said, "if subsequent developments threaten maintenance of the Italian cereals ration at present levels, such as a sudden, drastic reduction in shipments from other supplying areas, the United States would make every effort to allocate and ship such emergency quantities as might be required."

Exports for the first 11 months go to the following countries: (The figures are in long tons—37.4 bushels of wheat per ton.)

Austria 545,000; Belgium 396,000; Bolivia 28,000; Brazil 194,000; China 92,000; Columbia 39,000; Cuba 210,000; Czechoslovakia 3000; Denmark 25,000; Egypt 57,000; and Finland 58,000.

1,588,000 Tons for French

Fance and French North Africa get 1,523,000 tons; French colonies another 65,000.

The United States-British zone in Germany gets 3,387,000 long tons, and the French zone 302,000.

Greece gets 535,000; India, 652,000; Ireland, 95,000; Italy, 1,225,000; Mexico, 310,000; Netherlands, 569,000; Netherlands East India, 77,000; New Zealand, 1000; Norway, 103,000; Peru, 29,000; Philippines, 129,000; Poland, 31,000; Portugal, 158,000; Romania, 52,000; Sweden, 64,000; Switzerland, 181,000; Trieste, 58,000; Union of South Africa, 35,000; United Kingdom, 172,000; Syria and Lebanon, 16,000; United Kingdom in the Pacific, 83,000; other United Kingdom areas, 36,000; United States zones in Pacific (Japan and Korea) 1,427,000; Uruguay, 1000; Venezuela, 95,000 and "other countries," 481,000.

PMA announced it has all but four million bushels of wheat and flour to meet the May quota. Some is being shipped by commercial exporters.

The Department also announced a purchase of 5,281,650 bushels of flour yesterday. It rejected offers for an additional 3,334,725 bushels as too high.

Prayers Planned for Fund

Wilbur LaRoe, jr., moderator of the Presbyterian Church, has urged two million church members to join in prayers tomorrow for completion of the lagging 27-million-dollar Restoration Fund campaign. LaRoe is an elder of Chevy Chase Pre byterian Church.

The day will open a 60-day period proclaimed by the general council of the church for special emphasis in all churches and presbyteries on the denomination's obligation for postwar rebuilding and church relief. Churches which have not met their quotas have been asked to make a supreme eleventh hour effort to do so.

All churches are asked to observe Sunday, May 31, as a day of sharing with needy Christian communities overseas.

The fund, at $24,042,518, lacks a little less than three million dollars to achieve the goal of its three-year campaign authorized in May, 1945, and scheduled to end in May of this ye.r with the meeting of the General Assembly in Seattle.

30 Men in Arlington House Tell Tales of War

The Washington Post

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Memories of wartime capture, torture and human gallantry are common to a quiet, devout group of 30 men with their headquarters in an Arlington mansion.

They are members of the Immaculate Heart Missionary Congregation, with its United States headquarters at 4651 25th st.—a mansion known to Arlingtonians as "Lyon House."

The 30, part of an international Catholic missionary group numbering 1600 priests, devote their time to resettlement work in Negro slums all over the United States. All except one are Belgians.

But World War II found them scattered in Europe, Africa, China, the Philippines and Japan.

When the German armies invaded Belgium, Father Albert D'Huivetter, one of the 30, kept quietly on at his East Flanders church.

Local Nazis asked him for the bells in his church steeple. They needed scrap. Father D'Huivetter refused and spent more than a year in a German concentration camp.

Diminutive, cheerful Father Andrew Marques, a veteran of 16 years in the Philippines, was in Baguio when the Japs captured it.

Filipino students in the school he taught trickled off quietly to the hills to join guerilla bands. When they came back in the night, starved and tattered, Father Marques fed and clothed them.

Once, an American officer leading the guerillas took refuge at the school and spent the better part of two weeks under the father's bed to avoid capture.

When American POW's in Jap prison camps cried for food, the priest organized his remaining students, spotted them as salesmen in Jap-operated stores, and passed the food they stole to the prisoners.

He estimates that a total of $150,000 worth of food and clothing was given prisoners, at infinite risk.

In 1945, his own life in jeopardy, Father Marques fled to the mountains to avoid capture and spent the remainder of the war with his guerillas.

Father John K. Connelly, the only American in the group, served as an Army chaplain with the rank of colonel in the Pacific theater during the war. He was among the first to land in the Philippines, and in Japan.

With nearly a lifetime of Mongolian missionary work behind him Father Jacques Leyssen spent the war in a Jap concentration camp in China. At the Arlington mission only several months, he returns to Mongolia in February.

A grim story of fellow missionaries tortured, or killed outright by Japanese during the war can be heard from Father Ernest Dieltiens, house director, who spent 32 years in China.

Thousands of miles and several years from terror, their tales sound strangely in the quiet, sunny Arlington mansion with its sweeping view of the Nation's Capital.

Broken Ankle Started Bible Quiz

A broken ankle caused by a refrigerator's fall launched Evangelist Dale Crowley into the business of radio Bible quizzes.

Crowley, who today at 7 p. m. will celebrate the seventh year of his "Quizspiration" on WWDC, claims he was listening to another radio quiz during his recuperation when he conceived the idea for his own program.

More than 50 Congressmen have been among the participants on the "Quizspiration." Crowley builds his programs around high school and college students, Bible classes and even small children—the "Quizspiration Kids," whose Biblical knowledge is almost phenomenal.

The program is high in the "Hooperating" among religious programs. Selected biblical students who have participated in the past year's programs will be featured on the anniversary broadcast. The National Quartet will sing. Evangelist Crowley also conducts the "Right Start for the Day" program heard daily at 6:45 a. m. on WWDC.

Movie of U. S. 'Conspiracy' Wins Top Soviet Award

Moscow, April 2 (U.P.).—The first list of 1948 awards for the best in Russian literature and motion pictures, announced today, included award of one Stalin Prize worth 100,000 rubles ($12,500) to eight persons for the film version of "The Russian Question," a political play by Konstantin Simonov.

The producer, camerman and six actors will divide the sum equally. "The Russian Question" is a story of a conspiracy by American war propagandists and publishers against the Soviet Union.

Ilya Ehrenburg, the journalist, received 100,000 rubles for his novel "The Storm," a wartime story intended to show the triumph of communism over fascism and bourgeois influences.

Vast Store of Hidden Arms Is Uncovered Outside Rome

Rome, April 2 (AP).—Motorized Italian troops and police swept the approaches to Rome today, uncovering a vast supply of hidden arms, sufficient to equip a battalion. Between 30 and 40 Communists were arrested.

The arms seizure followed the machinegun slaying last midnight of a Sicilian labor leader and the wounding of two companions. The shootings, in the midst of Italy's election campaign, caused fresh forebodings of trouble.

Communist newspapers said Cologero Cangialosi was the thirty-sixth labor leader killed in Sicily in the last two years. He was caught in a burst of fire at Camporeale in eastern Sicily. Vto di Salvo and Vincenzo Liotta were wounded. The assailants escaped.

Strike Threatened

Even before the shooting the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor (CGIL) had threatened a nationwide strike for next Thursday if the police failed by that time to trace Placido Razzotto, another Sicilian labor chief. Rizzotto has been missing for three weeks.

Giuseppe di Vittorio, president of the six-million-member confederation, said the strike would be for one hour the first day and increase in length each succeeding day. Thus, on April 17, the day before Italy's crucial parliamentary election, the workers would be out for 10 hours.

The latest outbreak of Sicilian violence followed shortly after the slaying of Vincenzo Campo, a vice secretary of Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democratic party, and of Epifanio li Puma, a former union leader.

Dispatches from northern Italy today said a bomb was hurled at the home of a rightist leader at Callarate, near Milan. The leader's wife was injured. At Pietra, Tagliatti sentries fired on a group of unidentified persons who tried to force their way into an army ammunition dump.

The week-long strike of government civil court and justice department employes ended during the day. In Naples, youths distributed handbills with Mussolini's picture. Fights followed, and police made several arrests.

Heavy troop and military police formations were on the move in the Rome area in preparation for the government's "show of force" Sunday.

Moscow Ready to Talk Trade Pacts With Italy

Moscow, April 2 (U.P.).—Tass, official Soviet news agency, said today the Soviet government is prepared to begin discussions with Italy in Moscow as to conclusion of agreements on trade, navigation and reparations.

The agency said the Soviet government considers an Italian communication of March 20 an indication of Rome's readiness to send a delegation here.

Nats Cash In on 5 Chattanooga Errors to Win, 4-3

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., April 2.—The Nats are stronger this year—in press relations. No baseball writer has been punched by a ballplayer as yet; Manager Joe Kuhel is a great big bundle of charm in his dealings with the correspondents; Clark Griffith has installed an elevator to whisk the writers to the press box atop Griffith Stadium and it's all comparatively wonderful.

POVICH

Everybody's polite to everybody. Griffith is making no pennant claims and isn't getting mad when it is written that his club has no chance for the pennant. Kuhel is the No. 1 personality kid. He's spreading good cheer everywhere. The guys like him and want to strain themselves a bit to play good ball for him. The Nats may not be a good ball club, but they are a happy one.

The club threw a big fish fry and barbecue the other day and it was wonderful. Little Chic Pieretti whipped out his accordion and entertained better than most pros you hear. Walter Masterson and Sammy West staged jitterbug exhibitions. Nick Altrock recited. Kuhel bamboozled everybody with his card tricks. A couple of kegs of beer were on tap, but no hard liquor. Vice President Calvin Griffith picked up the check. Everybody loved everybody.

KUHEL'S in favor of all the fun. He's trying to do the whole thing smartly. "Let's get to know each other," he says to the players. He wants 'em to root for each other. "We don't want any cliques. On too many clubs, roommates pair off and that's the last the team sees of 'em off the field. I want 'em all friendly, so that they'll be out there yelling for each other the next day. That helps a ball club."

He's trying to whip up the old college try among the Nats, he says. "It never hurts a good team, and it's a help to a club like ours that doesn't have power. We have to get on base and then run, and we have to give all we've got. If they get thrown out trying to take an extra base, I'm not going to be mad, but if they don't get that extra base they should get, I'll be mad about it."

He takes players aside and makes little speeches to 'em. He's taken out of Griffith's hands the rough job of dismissing the rookies. A pep talk accompanies each release. He says he doesn't want any broken hearts among the youngsters who go back . . . And he doesn't want to keep them until they're ready to play major league ball, he says. "When we're ready to keep them, we hope they'll be ready to stick," he says.

SO FAR, KUHEL hasn't demonstrated that he can be tough. That will have to come later. There will be plenty of opportunity. Pitchers who feel they're not getting enough chance to work, or pitchers who don't like the idea of losing their regular turn, or infielders and outfielders who may squawk that they aren't getting a chance to stay in regularly.

Thus far, Kuhel is attempting the nice-guy technique. It may work. In the case of Muddy Ruel with the Browns last year, it didn't. The Browns reveled in the lack of authority, and there was bickering on the club all season. At the finish, Ruel didn't have a job. Kuhel says it won't hapen to him. He can be tough, he promises.

"I don't look for any trouble, but there's going to be no doubt about who's boss," he says. I'm going to try to give them all the breaks, but they'll know I can be tough the first time I need to be. It all depends on the individual I deal with. The first guy who doesn't cooperate for the good of the club is going to be bounced back on the bench or off the team. I hope there is no first guy."

THE FACT IS that Kuhel in his first year as a big league manager is perhaps in the nicest spot of them all, in one sense. He isn't on the spot at all. He isn't expected to win the pennant, or even finish in the first division. He has none of the worries of Joe McCarthy or Bucky Harris, for example. There's no pressure on Kuhel.

He has the complete sympathy of Owner Clark Griffith, who says frankly that it's the rookiest ball club he ever gave a manager to work with. Kuhel's mission this year is merely to finish as high as he can, and develop a couple of good ballplayers for future Washington clubs.

Griffith, incidentally, is very high on his rookie manager. He declares that Kuhel is the smartest ballplayer he ever had on a Washington club since Bucky Harris blossomed as managerial timber. "If they just play for Kuhel like Kuhel used to play ball for us, we'll do all right," says Griffith.

Kuhel, who has a one-year contract, is acting like a guy who signed for five.

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., April 2.—The Nats won a ball game today, but it scarcely permitted any pride-taking. They barely squeezed past their Chattanooga cousins, 4 to 3, after some doubt as to how it would all end, and they were outhit by a loud margin.

The Nats were held to six hits, five of them singles, by a pair of Chattanooga right-handers, Al Leedy and Alex Zukowski. Meanwhile the Lookouts slugged Sid Hudson and Chic Pieretti for eleven hits and threatened to wipe out all of the Nats' 4-0 lead.

Chattanooge kicked the game away with five errors that figured in three of the Nats' runs. They had the tying and winning runs on base in the ninth when Pieretti finally settled down and got 'em out.

Kozar Slightly Hurt

There was a brief scare for the Nats in the opening inning when Second Baseman Al Kozar was forced to retire from the game with a damaged finger suffered from a thrown ball. Rushed to the clubhouse he exhibited a slightly-split finger on his throwing hand and will not be out of the lineup for more than a day.

Sid Huson pitched the first six innings, became the first Washington pitcher to go that far this spring, and did very well despite the fact he was reached for one hit per inning. He didn't give up a run.

The Nats got an honest run in the opening inning when Johnny Sulliva beat out a hit and scored on Gil Coan's double to right, but all of their runs thereafter were tainted.

They improved their lead to 3-0 in the fifth with two runs on one hit — Lyon's double. That blow scored Difani, who walked as a pinch hitter, and Sullivan, who reached base on a boot.

In the seventh they got a run without the aid of a hit when ground balls were booted consecutively by Meeks and Shoals.

Pieretti was wild in the eighth. He hit one man and walked another and they both scored on a single to center by Leo (Muscle) Shoals.

In the ninth, with two out and none on, the Lookouts came up with a run on consecutive singles by Garbark, Meeks and Scott, but Pieretti got rid of Clark on a bounder to Lyons.

ROOKIE JAY Difani who came to the Nats as a third baseman will be groomed as an outfielder, says Clark Griffith . . . Joe Kuhel won't be on the coaching lines when the season opens. He prefers to work from the bench . . . Augie Gulielmo, the stubby little Southern Association umpire, with all the histronics of Bill McGowan, is bucking for a big league job. He is assigned to the Chattanooga camp . . . Clark Griffith cracked wise over a national radio hook-up today when interviewed by Arthur Godfrey. Asked about his Washington club, Griffith labelled it "No hit, no field, no pitch" . . . Scout Mike Martin has departed the Nats' camp for a tour of the North Carolina area . . . Sherry Robertson was moved from right to center field today, and it may be a permanent adjustment . . . For the first time during the seven years they have been teammates on the Nats, Al Evans outranks Jake Early on the catching staff . . . Baseball Commissioner Chandler, scheuled to visit the Nats camp today, has postponed his appearance until Sunday . . . A visitor today was Joe Cronin and Mrs. Cronin, who motored from Sarasota to visit their relatives who own the Washington club . . . The Nats start a two-game series with the A's tomorrow at Tinker Field. Early Wynn will oppose Phil Marchildon in the opener.

Terps, Indians Play 10 to 10 10-Inning Tie

Merciful darkness put an end to the Dartmouth Maryland baseball game at College Park yesterday in the tenth inning after each side had tallied 10 runs and 10 errors had been committed.

Three hours and 25 minutes passed while the teams amassed a total of 29 hits.

It was the second straight extra-inning tie for the Terps who went 13 futile innings with Harvard early this week for a 3-3 stalemate.

Dartmouth took a 4-0 lead in the second inning on two walks, an error and singles by Bill West and Roger Fritchette.

Maryland tallied once in the second and rammed across three runs in the third with a triple by Whitey Ensweller and singles by Bob Moeller and Jack Condon.

Terp starting pitcher Bucky Loomis was replaced in the sixth inning after allowing two more Indian runs. Reliefer Bill Zupnick lasted until the eighth when Dartmouth scored four more runs to tie the game at 10 all.

Maryland had scored four in the fifth inning as Joe Andrus and Whitey Ensweller wrapped a pair of doubles around Al Cesky's single and Dartmouth contributed two errors.

But the Hero Goes Down

'Deck Him, Rocky,' Fans Howl As the Champ Works Out

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

"Deck him, Rocky," shouted a lusty-throated fellow from way in the back.

"Yeah, Rock, knock him reeling for us," bellowed another 50-cent customer.

That's the way it went for most of the 30 minutes Rocky Graziano boxed with Jimmy Taylor, a sparring partner, at the Liberty Athletic Club gym yesterday.

Rocky was trying, make no mistake about that, but he just couldn't "deck" Taylor. Oh, he hit him, all right. About 50 ripping hooks to the head and chn, but Taylor, who's been Graziano's punching bag for the last two weeks, just wouldn't fall.

Matter of fact, Rocky himself was the only one to go down. He slipped to the canvas in round two and there were moans from the packed house of 500. Co-Manager Jack Healey rushed up to inform observers that was a push, not a knockdown, just a push.

When he had completed belting the ever-retreating Taylor from one end of the rickety, squeaky ring to the other, Graziano moved over to the light punching bag.

There he had the onlookers ogle-eyed, and he did it with just one move—a roundhouse right which unshackled the bag from its swivel. That brought a tremendous howl.

It would seem that the crowd would leave now since they had already watched The Rock pummel a sparring partner and break a punching bag. But, no. They refused to go. They stayed, every last one of them, for 20 more minutes while The Rock did nothing except shadow box and calisthenics.

That's the appeal The Rock had for them.

Graziano's first Washington workout for his Monday night fight with Sonny Horne attracted the largest crowd ever to squirm its way into the ramshackle gymnasium.

He'll go through his paces again today, at 2:30, to be preceded by Horne. Sonny, incidentally, picked up a few followers himself yesterday. The crowd saw him go six fast rounds with Aaron Perry, and Perry couldn't lay a glove on the ever-moving, fancy-dan from Valley Stream, N. Y.

A. U. to Study Grid Demands

An American University committee will discuss within a week the question of returning football to the school's athletic program.

Lyle W. Ashby, chairman of the Board of Trustees' student life committee, said yesterday a full report will be prepared for final action by the 44-man board at its meeting April 17.

Ashby, though declining to go on record as favoring the return of football, said, "I know that our committee wants the students to have a chance to express their opinion. We want the question to have a full and fair hearing."

Thursday night, more than 500 students gave an enthusiastic expression of their sentiments. They staged a mass rally with a torch-light parade and bonfire that brought out the fire department.

Then they stormed a seminar being conducted by Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of the university, with a demand that the school sponsor a football team. American has'nt had one since 1941.

Yesterday, Dr. Douglass, an outspoken critic of commercialism in college football, said, "As far as I'm concerned about football here, I don't care either way. The Board of Trustees will have the final say."

Silver Spring Drills

Silver Spring baseball team will hold practice today from 4 to 6 p. m. on the Jessup Blair field and Sunday from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. on the Rock Creek field No. 2.

About the Golfers:

Mrs. Young Wins Blind Bogey Match

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

MRS. O. L. YOUNG won the season's first 18-hole blind bogey tournament yesterday at Army-Navy Country Club. Mrs. R. H. Northwood took the honors in a nine-hole bogey tourney . . . Dallas Carnes, the only southpaw golfer in Bethesda Country Club, put a tee shot two inches from the pin for a birdie deuce on the 199-yard ninth hole . . . Only a few days previous, fellow-member Horace Lurton scored the club's first ace of the year . . . Inseparable golfing companions are Forest Thompson and Jesse Baggett of Prince Georges. Nicknamed Bones and Bags by their friends, the two men play in all kinds of weather. Both are rated among the area's leading senior players . . . Washington Golf and Country Club has two promising golfers. They are Charles M. DeLashmutt, jr., and Cornelius H. Doherty, jr. Both boys recently turned 10, yet both shoot in the low 50's for nine holes.

MRS. VERA HENDERSON, women's champion of Congressional, was practicing the first time this week since recovering from an operation . . . The hardest working woman golfers at Kenwood are Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. J. P. Trouchard. Hardly a day goes by that they are not out practicing. It's paid off for both—Mrs. Meckley is low handicap golfer in the Maryland State Golf Association, while Mrs. Trouchard plays consistently in the 80's after three years of golf . . . The Federal Golf Association interagency team match play schedule is tentatively slated to begin around May 1. Plans call for matches every other week through July. Applications for team entries or for individuals who wish to play on teams should be sent to Darrell L. Johnson, 2222 Eye st, nw.,

In $500,000 Suit

Minister Charges Joe Louis Alienated Wife's Affections

Chicago, April 2 (AP).—A $500,000 damage suit filed today in Superior Court accused Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis of alienating the affections of a minister's wife. The suit was filed by the Rev. Matthew C. Faulkner, 32-year-old Atlanta, Ga., Negro minister.

Louis and his wife, the former Marva Trotter of Chicago, are currently in Europe. The champion recently appeared in several exhibition boxing matches in England.

The suit charged that Louis, during last November, December and January "wilfully destroyed and alienated from the plaintiff the affections of his wife, Mattie Carrie Faulkner."

Attorney Sol Friedman, who filed the suit, said Mrs. Faulkner, 26, is a "beautiful model." She uses the professional name of Carolle Drake.

"The illicit affair was carried on while Faulkner was in the Army as a captain in the chaplain corps," the suit read. It added:

"Louis, through his agent and representative, furnished Mrs. Faulkner with $15,000 and other gifts, making a total of approximately $35,000."

It also said the Faulkners were "sincerely in love and happy together until the interference by Louis."

The Faulkners were married September 28, 1941, the suit said, and have "two fine children" who are "devoted" to Faulkner.

Faulkner is a Baptist preacher. He was discharged from the Army March 17. According to Friedman, the couple separated last December when Mrs. Faulkner left their Park Avenue apartment in New York.

Faulkner filed a separate maintenance suit in New York, but then had it dismissed. He now is living with his family in Atlanta. The children, Matthew Kenneth, 4, and Oran Drake, 2, are living with their mother in New York.

Faulkner's suit said he is supporting his wife and children "to the best of his ability," but charges that "he has been deprived of their comfort and companionship because of Louis' acts."

The two-page suit contains no specific charge of infidelity.

Faulkner said he had asked for a discharge after seven years in the Army to "clear up my marital troubles." He had served in North Africa and Italy.

In New York City, Mrs. Faulkner denied that she ever had received money or gifts from the heavyweight champion.

No date for a hearing on the suit was set, because it must await Louis' return from abroad.

Although Louis owned a large amount of real estate in Chicago and elsewhere, a lot of his property was turned over to his wife when she won a divorce suit from him.

Later the two were remarried, and Louis' only son, Joe Louis, jr., was born to the couple last summer. Despite their reunion, Joe's property was not returned to his name.

The recognized mark for the distance is 2:35, held by Verdeur. Earlier this winter Joe brought this down to 2:32. This afternoon in the preliminaries, he lowered it to 2:31.3.

Verdeur was actually timed for 220 yards, the distance at which the AAU championship event is listed. There is no world record for this, and as 200 meters and 220 yards.

Leo's Gamble

Dodgers Rest Future on Youngsters

(This is the seventh in a series reviewing major league baseball teams.)

VERO BEACH, Fla., April 2 (AP). Brooklyn has a young, hustling ball club, without real home run power, that should help manager Leo Durocher wiggle off the baseball hot seat.

Leo, back from a year in Commissioner A. B. Chandler's dog house, knows he has to win. After Burt Shotton's success in 1947, Dodgers fans expect nothing less than a pennant. Second place will not do, especially after the sale of Dixie Walker ad Eddie Stanky.

This Dodger team, bronzed by a month in the Dominican Republic, is far from set as it pauses here en route home via Texas.

But it flashes enough speed to run helter-skelter past most of the National League, given a break in pitching from youngsters. You can expect the typical Durocher box score with 20 or 21 Dodgers in every game.

Not until April 10 when the "B" squad rejoins the varsity will the Brooklyn ball club play as a unit. Injuries to key men have kept them apart. But that's nothing to become alarmed about. The Dodgers usually advance a couple of regulars from Montreal on the eve of opening day.

First Base Big Problem

Right now the big question is first base. Ray Sanders, acquired from the Boston Braves on a conditional basis in the Eddie Stanky deal, has not played yet. He is optimistic and so is Durocher, but he remain a question mark.

If Sanders shows complete recovery from a series of operations on his arm, he will play.

Jackie Robinson stays on first until Sanders is ready and Pete Reiser has been learning the trade under George Sisler in case of an emergency. If Sanders makes it, Robinson probably will go to second base, displacing Eddie Mirsis.

Rickey and Durocher are high on Robinson as a second baseman.

"We won the pennant with the best second baseman in baseball playing at first base," said Rickey.

Peewee Reese, of course, is the shortstop with Billy Cox at third. Cox, acquired from Pittsburgh in the deal that sent Dixie Walker, Vic Lombardi and Hal Gregg to the Pirates, seems to have won the battle with Tommy Grown and Spider Jorgensen.

Arky Vaughan, making a fine comeback, probably will open in left field, adding more power to the attack. Carl Furillo in center and Dick Whitman, a .327 hitter at Montreal, in right, appear to be the outfield.

Edwards Nursing Arm

Duke Snider, touted as a home-run hitter, has disappointed but must be considered. Gene Hermanski, a 1947 regular; Don Lund, Marv Rackley, Al Gionfriddo, Cal Abrams and Frenchy Bordagaray are the other outfielders at the moment. Six will stay.

Catcher Bruce Edwards is staying in Florida for a few days with a sore arm. Leo thinks he'll be ready for the opener. Gil Hodges, played only 28 games last year in a full season with the Dodgers, has been the talk of the camp with his spring hitting.

Roy Campanella, a Negro catcher moved up from Montreal earlier this week, and Bobby Bragan are the other receivers. Everybody is high on Campanella, a husky customer with a strong arm.

Ralph Branca, 21-game winner last year, heads the pitching staff. Preacher Roe, who had a poor 4-15 record for Pittsburgh, will share the southpaw starting jobs with Joe Hatten.

Rex Barney, faster than ever but still wild, is going to start this year. He may be the big surprise Harry Taylor, who won 10 in his freshman year, has pitched good ball despite recurrent pains in his arm.

Fritz Maisel Finishes Six Lengths Back

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., April 2.—Two Kentucky Derby candidates made their 1948 debuts here today and, as far as winning was concerned, they might as well have "stood" in their stalls.

P. A. Rothfus' Gain A'Foot, a 3-year-old who never will see a Derby, Preakness or Belmont, showed much disrespect for his two uppity rivals and three other colts and fillies.

Apprentice Jockey Bobby Drury took this son of Sky Raider to the front in the opening furlong and it was simply "no contest."

Six lengths behind Gain A'Foot came Alan T. Clarke's Fritz Maisel, a Louisville classic hope who hung a neck defeat for the place money on F. A. Piarulli's Kanace. Fourth position went to D. A. Rosenbaum's Reborn the other Derby proposition.

Winner Pays $6.60

Gain A'Foot's speed was noted in the past performances by the crowd of 10,000 and he returned a $6.60 mutuel. Although he was coasted into the wire, the 3-year-old was clocked in 1:13 3/5, remarkable time considering that the track was heavy.

Fritz Maisel, winner of the Maryland Breeders' Stake here last fall, showed a fair effort. He was not abused by Jockey Willie Balzaretti. The colt was settling into stride when he was caught in close quarters and was eased back.

When in full stride, he closed gamely to take the place from Kanace. However, Balzaretti did not go to the whip, resorting only to hand riding. The consensus of the press box was that the son of Little Beans would improve off the race.

Reborn, winner of four races last year, showed nothing that would indicate he would be a Derby threat. He flashed some early speed but appeared to weaken when placed to pressure. However, it is too early to throw him out entirely.

Jockey Carson Kirk of Silver Spring, took the riding honors for the day. The one-time Charles Town wonder booted Mrs. H. M. Jenkins' Honest Knave home to win the fifth race at a $6.60 mutuel. His only other mount of the day was aboard K. A. O'Connor's Temru and it brought another victory. This time the payoff was $8.40.

The day's big price, stock equipment here, was $89.20 paid by P. E. Albert's White Ford. The old campaigner, last in his previous start, choose to run today and galloped home under the handling of Apprentice Lee Lacy who was riding his first winner on any track.

The daily double paid a mild $26.60 and resulted from a $9.20 win by the Donna Ray Stable's Psychic Rate which followed a $4.80 victory by Morton Newmeyer's Country Dude in the first event.

Gallup Poll

Fans Pick Louis Over Walcott In Return Bout by 4 to 3 Ratio

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., April 2.—In a split decision American sports fans give the nod to Joe Louis to retain the world heavyweight title in his return bout with Joe Walcott next June.

The men and women who regularly follow sports think in the ratio of 4 to 3 that the champion will win.

But no such mixed opinions prevail among the nation's ace forecasters, the sports editors of daily newspapers.

A representative sampling of leading dailies finds the editors almost unanimously predicting a Joe Louis victory.

Field reporters for the American Institute of Public Opinion asked thousands of representative men and women throughout the country if they followed sports.

Those who said they did were then asked:

Do you think Joe Louis can beat Jersey Joe Walcott when and if they fight again next summer?

The answers:

Yes, Joe Louis will win ... 49%
No, Joe Walcott will win .. 36
Don't know who will win .. 15

Spohts editors of representative member papers of the Institute were invited to express their views on the same question. They were given a space on the ballot to comment or "hedge" their predictions.

This is the way the 70 editors participating voted:

Joe Louis to win ....64 editors
Joe Walcott to win .... 5 editors
No opinion .....1 editors

Twenty-three of the editors went further out on the limb than the question required of them and predicted that Louis will win by a knockout.

Eleven were brave enough to crawl out still further and name the round, ranging from the third to the eighth.

Hoyas Beat Out Trinity In 10th, 7-6

Two walks and a single by Joe DiLeo in the tenth gave Georgetown's Hoyas a 7-6 victory over Trinity College yesterday at Georgetown Medical Field. It was the first win in two starts for the Hoyas this season.

Bob Gorra who relieved Bob O'Connor on the mound in the seventh inning received credit for the victory.

After falling behind, 2-0, the Hoyas tied the score in the fourth. Dick Falvery, Frank Alagia and John Moskal walked, and O'Connor drove across two runs with a sharp single. They went ahead in the fifth on a walk to Joe Connor, singles by Elmer Raba and Falvey and an infield out.

However, Trinity pushed across three runs in the sixth off O'Connor, and it took a tremendous home run with none on by Elma Raba in the seventh inning to tie the score at six all, and send the game into overtime.

Arabs Probe Jew Defense Near Galilee

Jerusalem, April 2 (U.P.).—The Arab army encamped in northern Palestine today began probing Jewish defense in the northern Galilee area, a section hitherto free from violence.

Reports from the Jewish settlements of Bet Alfa, Hefziba, Zeraaim and Ein Herod said Arab troops staged minor attacks with "insignificant casualties." Several other points in the area reported Arab activity.

A contingent of 18 American members of the Zionist Action Committee, arrived at Tel Aviv to attend an extraordinary session to appraise the recent U. N. and other developments.

Meanwhile, an official announcement said police found the bodies of 10 Arabs buried in an orange grove mid-way between Tel Aviv and Jerusalem.

The food pinch in Jerusalem as a result of the Arab blockade was underlined by the theft of 30 tons of flour from the British Army convoy on the outskirts of the Holy City. Members of the Jewish extremist Irgun Zvai Leumi held the Britons at gunpoint and commandeered several trucks.

The sabbath for Jerusalem's 100,000 Jews will be ushered in without the traditional meal of fish and meat due to the food pinch.

U. N. Palestine Board To Continue Efforts

Lake Success, N. Y., April 2 (NYHT).—In a 4-to-1 decision, the United Nations Palestine Commission decided today that there is nothing for it to do except to continue in a guarded fashion its efforts to partition the Holy Land into Arab and Jewish states.

The commission had to face the problem of its future because, the Security Council yesterday virtually abandoned partition, and requested an Arab-Jewish truce, and called a special session of the United Nations General Assembly for April 16 to reconsider political future.

However, at today's meeting, Czechoslovakia, Bolivia, Panama and the Philippines were of the general opinion that since the assembly put the group to work on partition and that assignment has never been revoked, the commission should continue with its task.

No Passport For Isacson

Council for Aid to Democratic Greece toward this bipartisan policy of the United States Government is well known.

'Not In U. S. Interests'

"It is obvious therefore that the issuance of a passport for the purpose stated is not in the interests of the Government of the United States."

Isacson's application for a passport had been filed with the department on March 25. He was not available for comment last night.

Isacson is the first Wallace-supported candidate elected to Congress. He defeated Democratic and Republican candidates in a usually Democratic section of the Bronx, New York, by a wide margin in a by-election.

Both Isacson and Wallace, who spoke on his behalf in the district, blasted the Truman Administration's foreign policy. They called for new efforts to reach understanding with Russia.

New Hawaii Hearing Set

Another hearing on statehood for Hawaii will be held by the Senate territories subcommittee beginning April 15 in Washington.

Speaker Convinced U. S. Owes Children Right to Education

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr., (R., Mass.) said yesterday there is more public interest in the Federal-aid-to-education bill which passed the Senate Thursday than in any other measure now before Congress.

Before the bill gets the green light in the House, however, Martin said, the demands on the budget for defense purposes will have to be determined.

The bachelor House speaker, who has been considered unfriendly to the measure to grant 300 million dollars a year to the states to educate America's children, said he believed Congress would have to accept the principle that it was the Nation's responsibility to see that all children had the opportunity for education.

Puts U. S. Security First

But national security must come first, Martin warned. He said Congress would have to consider and act immediately upon measures to strengthen this Nation's defenses.

President Truman has asked for an additional 14 billion dollars for defense purposes, Martin pointed out, and as yet Congress has not determined how much is necessary.

A companion to the Federal-Aid-to-Education bill which sped through the Senate with an overwhelming bipartisan vote of 58 to 22 is still held in the House Committee on Labor and Education by one vote.

It is generally accepted that it will be reported out only when the House leadership gives the go-ahead signal.

Hagerstown Held Vice Den

pleaded that the defendant had "fallen in love" with Mrs. Campbell, who is 29 and the mother of five.

Hudson expected to marry her at the time she went to Hagerstown, the attorney said.

Mrs. Campbell took the stand and corroborated the statement.

"He didn't want me to go to Hagerstown," she said.

The Government countered with a statement their FBI agents said Hudson gave them when he was arrested.

It listed Mrs. Campbell's earnings at $120 a week on the averag and said the "house got $60 and Hudson got $30.

Hudson said it wasn't that much and that he spent most of the money he got on her.

Judge Chesnut said it is "inconceivable" that a man would take prostitution earnings from a woman he intended to marry and convicted Hudson on the transportation charge.

Breaks Into Sobs

Mrs. Campbell broke into violent sobs when he imposed the 18-month sentence.

Those who pleaded innocent included three persons arrested in Hagerstown and charged with transporting women there. They were Lena Michelotti, alias Boots Cross, 26; Helen Lee Rollinson, alias Jackie McCoy, 28, and Milton W. Stoneberger, 28.

Charles Junior Hudson, 23, of Lynchburg, no relation to Stephen, is charged with transporting a woman from Lynchburg to Hagerstown.

Paul Grant, 37, and Jimmy Kovaco, alias Jimmy Smith, 35, were arrested at Harrisburg, Pa., and are charged with transporting a woman from there to Hagerstown.

Glen Johnson, 28, and Margaret Esther (Connie) Johnson were arrested in Indiana and are charged with tranporting a woman from Muncie, Ind., to Hagerstown.

Washington Due to Enjoy Great Music Over Weekend

By Paul Hume
From Yesterday's Late Editions

Washington was ablaze with great musicians and great music yesterday and most of it will continue through the weekend.

The Budapest Quartet holds forth in the Library of Congress tonight, Gregor Piatigorsky played his new Stradivarius cello in Constitution Hall last night, and Igor Stravinsky is rehearsing the National Symphony for a brilliant program of his music Sunday afternoon.

Out at Harvard University's Dumbarton Oaks, the Friends of Music are enjoying two evenings of Mozart, played by a chamber orchestra under Alexander Schneider, with Ralph Kirkpatrick as clavier soloist. Jennie Tourel is singing Mozart on both programs, as no other singer of our knowledge today can sing Mozart.

We heard Piatigorsky and Ralph Berkowitz in an appropriately spirited account of Boccherini's C Major sonata for cello. The great Russian's new cello known to the trade as a "spaghetti house" has a remarkably lyrical tone—not as rich and round as other notable cellos, but of amazing sweetness. This quality marked his whole performance, standing him in good stead as he closed the slow movement and moved in perfect fashion into the final rondo. His art is as secure and noble as it has been for many seasons.

Putting off our enjoyment of the Budapest quartet until tonight, we moved to Dumbarton Oaks as fast as the law allows.

There, with Mozart the guiding spirit of the evening, Schneider, Kirkpatrick, Daniel Saidenberg, and Mitchell Miller surrounded Miss Tourel with beautiful performances of the B Flat trio, the C Minor Fantasy for solo clavier, and the oboe quartet in F Major. Their playing had its usual polish, and all the spirit of the miraculous composer.

And what of Jennie Tourel? Such Mozart singing we have not heard since the greatest days of Elisabeth Schumann. No other singer in America possesses the vocal technique and the brains together, to imbue every phrase with that rightness, that flowing eloquence in slow and rapid passages which make Mozart's songs and arias the exquisite moments they should be.

Bill Seeks Tour Of Berlin Art

rightful property of the German government.

The bill gives the Secretary of the Army responsibility for the collection. But he is authorized to give custody to the board of trustees of the National Art Gallery for exhibition purposes. These may be held only within the continental limits of the United States.

The collection is not now insured. However, the bill makes the United States Government responsible for damages that might be suffered in transportation.

Viewed by 308,133

Up to last night, 308,133 persons had visited the National Art Gallery exhibition, which opened March 17. It is easily the most precious collection now in this country. A total of 25,769 visited the exhibit yesterday. Exhibit hours are from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m daily and 2 to 10 on Sunday.

Senator Fulbright decided to introduce the bill after The Washington Post printed an interview with Erik Reger, chief editor of the Berlin Tagesspiegal, the largest newspaper in Germany licensed by the American military government.

Reger is now in Washington at the invitation of American publishers. He suggested that the paintings be exhibited in a dozen other American cities during the next 12 months before they are returned.

This, he said, "would lead to better understanding between the two nations" and most Germans, he added, would agree. Reger suggested that eight or ten German art curators take charge of the paintings during their American tour. Thus, the United States would scrupulously avoid any impression that it was trying to keep them permanently.

Both Senator Ball (R., Minn.) and Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) joined in backing the Nation-wide exhibition. Ball said he had already written to the Army Department making that suggestion. Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) said he was writing to the Army to request that a similar exhibition be given in New York City, art capital of the United States.

"It's ridiculous to send these paintings back to Germany now in view of what may happen in the next few months," said Senator Ball. "If we don't want to move them around the country, then we should keep them right here in Washington until we are sure the German people will continue to exist as a nation. There is no doubt in anybody's mind that the paintings belong to the German Government."

Senator Pepper suggested that a "Freedom Train" be made up similar to that in which documents of American beginnings were exhibited. "The idea of shutting these precious treasures in museums is good," he said, "but it's far better to put these out where millions can see them—and give the paintings good protection."

Senator Morse declared his "complete agreement" with the Fulbright bill. "The great public interest created in this country by these paintings makes it very unwise and very unfair to Americans and Germans to return the paintings to Germany before they have been exhibited more extensively," he declard.

The Army is expected to object strongly to any delay in returning the art. Col. T. S. Riggs, head of the policy and government branch of the Army's Civil Affairs Division, declared that "with the present tension it would be unwise to give German people the impression we have lost confidence in them and their ability to protect the paintings."

Former GI Cleared In Atom Secret Case

Santa Fe., N. Mex., April 2 (AP).—A 28-year-old former Army sergeant is free of charges of stealing secret atomic pictures because the United States Attorney found "full facts show he was not guilty."

The charges against Fred Gerard Michaels of Rochester, N. Y., were dismissed in Federal Court late yesterday. He had been a GI member of the Los Alamos project photography staff.

Lane Warns Of More Taxes For 'Progress'

Baltimore, April 2 (A).—Governor Lane said tonight that Marylanders "realize" they must "provide the revenues" needed to keep Maryland "in the van of progress."

Lane reviewed State educational and building programs in a speech prepared for delivery here at a conference of the Maryland Utilities Association.

"I am certain the vast majority of our citzens want Maryland to keep in the van of progress, and that they realize that we can have these things only if they provide the revenues with which to accomplish them," Lane said.

He reiterated that "I am expecting shortly" a report on a planned 25-million-dollar bridge or tunnel across Chesapeake Bay.

"Barring presently unforeseen world conditions, we expect to begin actual construction of this crossing this year," he said.

Maryland, he added, "is devoting more than half of its total general treasury revenues to the support of the public educational system."

The State's 200-million-dollar five-year roads program, Lane said, is "off to a most promising start."

"The over-all picture for the year in all the departments of the State is one of progress," he said.

State utilities companies have "a three-fold obligation—a living wage for personnel, a fair return for investors and the lowest possible rate for services to the public," Lane said.

Maryland Tax Collections Overhauled

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—With the big load of income tax returns due the next two weeks, State Comptroller James J. Lacy announced today he is overhauling all the tax collecting divisions in his department.

Frank A. Shallenberger, who has been working in the sales tax division, was assigned to reorganize the alcoholic beverage division.

Lacy asked for the resignation of Ernest C. Rogers, chief of the admissions tax division.

The comptroller some time ago announced an overhaul of the income tax division, and assigned Walter E. Kennedy, who set up and was directing the sales tax division.

The goal, Lacy said, is to intensify collections and increase effectiveness.

State income tax returns, starting to filter in, will reach the peak April 15, the deadline.

Lacy has directed the income tax division to crack down on those who fail to file returns, or pay. Either violation is punishable by a $500 fine, six months in jail, or both.

Income Tax Cases Rare

State income tax cases have been rare in the past, and the division plans to make a more thorough check of returns against those filed by Maryland residents with the Federal Government.

Any single person making more than $1000 in 1947, and any married couple making more than $2000 must file a return. A person or couple operating a business or trade having more than $5000 in gross receipts also must file.

The tax rate is 2 per cent on regular income, and 5 per cent on investment income.

U. S. Bureau Must Settle Tubercular Patient Row

District Refuses Responsibility for 10 Being Treated at Freedmen's Hospital

The Federal Budget Bureau will be called upon to decide the dispute over who will pay bills for 10 tubercular women patients at Freedmen's Hospital.

Commissioner Guy Mason said yesterday he will inform the Budget Bureau Monday that the District will no longer be responsible for the 10 patients, who refuse to be transferred to Glenn Dale Sanatorium.

But the Commissioners "under no circumstances" will use police to effect the transfer, he said.

His statement came after Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West ruled that "the District is not required to reimburse Freedman's Hospital" for care of the patients after advising Freedman's of its desire for the transfer.

West's opinion made no mention of whether the Health Officer has power to "forceably transfer" the patients.

Herman A. Johnson, assistant superintendent at Freedmen's, said, however, that the hospital had received no "official" word of West's ruling and will continue to bill the District.

"But I don't know where we're going to go from there," he admitted. "I jut can't put the people outside, though."

Transfer of the patients to the District sanatorium was ordered as an economy measure because appropriations for care of city patients at Freedmen's already are overdrawn, Health Officer George C. Ruhland said.

Horan Calls For Unified Police Force

Only Way to Cure Problems, He Says Following Hearing

Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.) yesterday expressed doubt that Washington's police problems would be solved until the city's many separate police agencies are coordinated into one central department.

He made the comment yesterday after hearing District and police officials testify on next year's law enforcement budget before the House District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Horan also suggested that study be given to creating a distinctive uniform for metropolitan police officers to eliminate confusion with streetcar operators, bus drivers and sightseeing guides.

Barrett Praised

Horan had high praise for the way the police department is being run, and for its superintendent, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, who attended the charing with other police officials.

"My own personal opinion of the police departmentis pretty high," said Horan. "Considering the VIP's (very important people) and the special assignments that fall to the police here, I think they do a pretty good job."

More Men on Beats.

Horan described as a "very good trend" the department's move to get more police out on the beats.

The representative disclosed, too, that he has called on District budget and legal officials to study possible precedents in the Capper-Cramton Act for Federal loans to the District for capital construction.

Nation's Drain On Oil Wells Held Perilous

Senate Committee Hears Opposing Views on Shortage

Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug yesterday told a Senate Small Business Oil Subcommittee that the Nation's drain on oil wells endangers future production.

He said he "regretted" published assertion of a committee aide that there is sufficient oil production to meet current needs, and estimated oil supply is 15 per cent short of demands.

Secretary Krug referred to testimony Thursday of Paul E. Hadlick, special counsel for the subcommittee, who appeared at a Public Utilities Commission hearing on whether buses could be substituted for streetcars on half of the Rosslyn-Benning line in the face of a petroleum shortage.

Shortage Held 'Man-Made'

Hadlick termed the reported oil shortage "man-made" and said talk of an oil shortage or impending shortage was "perfectly silly." Independent producers, he testified, could increase production 500,000 barrels a day if necessary.

"Attacks like these get three times as much space in the papers as appeals for conservation," Secretary Krug declared.

In answer to Hadlick's estimate of possible production increases, Krug said oil wells are now being drained at the maximum rate consistent with sound conservation. In some areas, he said, the drain is "too high."

Price Temptation Cited

"Prices are so high that the temptation to draw more oil and violate State conservation measures is at a peak," Krug told the subcommittee.

The proposed conversion to buses on the streetcar route would require an estimated 838,724 gallons of gasoline annually, which Hadlick termed "but a drop in the bucket."

Md. Plea Denied

Court Bars Election for Judgeship

Annapolis, Md., April 2 (AP).—The Maryland Court of Appeals today rejected Noah A. Hillman's attempt to force an election for judge in the Fifth Judicial District.

The court, upholding a Circuit Court decision, ruled in effect that Marvin I. Anderson, recently appointed as Anne Arundel County circuit judge, would not have to stand for election until 1950.

After handing down its preliminary decision, the court adjourned until April 20.

In the only other action today, the court heard attorneys for the Columbia Paper Products Corp. of Baltimore argue against a lower court decision for the firm to produce its business records.

In its appeal, the firm said Stephen F. Gross and Henry T. Dietz, former members of the company, had gone on a legal "fishing expedition" for the records.

Hillman, an Annapolis attorney, asked that his name be placed on the ballot as a candidate for judge in Anne Arundel, Howard and Carroll counties.

"The man in the street believes" that Judge Anderson should have to stand for election this year, Hillman argued.

Anderson was appointed last month to replace Judge William J. McWilliams, who had been appointed in 1946 to fill a vacancy, and who resigned this spring.

By law, an appointed judge—after serving one year—must stand for election at the next biennial elections.

Attorney General Hall Hammond told the court the law is "plain and unambiguous" that an appointed judge "shall have at least a year's service and then submit to an election."

Hammond and Assistant Attorney General Edgar Harvey opposed Hillman.

In upholding the decision of Judge James Clark, who, sitting in Howard County Circuit Court this week, dismissed Hillman's petition, the appeals court handed down a preliminary "per curiam" decision based on "reasons to be stated in an opinion to be filed later."

Man Drowns as Wife Watches From Shore

Fredericksburg, Va., April 2 (AP).—Irving Lewis Carter, 20, of Fredericksburg, drowned in the Rappahannock River here about 6 p. m. yesterday. The body had not been found today.

Carter's wife and three other persons on the shore who were with him at the time told police Carter jumped into the water from a moored skiff and started swimming across the river. Efforts to reach him were balked by swift and swollen water.

District Fireman Quits Job To Enter Army Fourth Time

Here's a story to please Army recruiting officers.

D. W. Miller, 34, who served two previous itches as an enlisted man and a four-year stretch as a lieutenant during World War II is going back for keeps.

He has resigned as a private in the Fire Department's No. 6 Truck Co., effective Monday, to make the Army his career.

"It gets into your blood," he explained.

Asked if his decision was prompted by the current world situation, Miller replied: "I feel that there's going to be a need for experienced men."

Now a first lieutenant in the active reserve, he hopes to get a military police assignment.

Miller served in Hawaii and Panama before the war, and swept through Europe with an Engineer Corps combat battalion when United States troops invaded the continent.

He joined the fire department in 1942 but found himself back in the service three months later. His present tour with the department began in June, 1946. He and his wife, Phyllis, live at 1324 Park rd. nw.

Appeals Court Judges Return To Own Cases

Municipal Court's Backlog of 600 Wiped Out With Their Aid

Having wiped out a backlog of about 900 cases in the Municipal Court, the judges of the Municipal Court of Appeals will now begin bringing the calendar of their own court up to date.

Chief Judge Nathan Cayton of the Appeals Court said:

"Naturally I am highly gratified with the report of disposal of civil jury trials. It shows real progress and should be reassuring to lawyers and litigants. Now the judges of the Municipal Court of Appeals again may devote themselves to the work of the Appeals Court, which of necessity has been held in abeyance during their term of service in trial work. We hope that we may soon be able to bring the work of the Court of Appeals up to date."

The appeals judges began a program of cooperation with the lower court magistrates on February 14, after a critical survey by a committee of the District Bar Association.

But the lower court work hindered the appeals court program, with but three cases heard in that court in the past six weeks. As a result, according to Judge Cayton, that court is now more than 15 cases in arrears. The jurist believes this backlog can be erased in a month or two.

Judge Brice Claggett of the appeals court, in submitting his report, made the following recommendations:

1. Abolition of a rule permitting cases to be continued by consent of all counsel where the consent is filed before noon on the day preceding the trial day.

2. Prevent attorneys from "returning a case to the files for settlement" and then forgetting to file the necessary papers informing the court that the case has been settled.

Md. Guard Roll At 3100, Within 700 of Record

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—The Maryland National Guard has reached a total strength of 3100 men, only 700 less than the record peak in 1939.

Guard headquarters said 2062 enlistments had been obtained since April 1, 1947. At that time, a quota of 3000 men by June, 1948, was set.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, State adjutant general, said the guard hoped to reach a strength of 4500 by June, 1949. The ultimate quota set by the Army Department for the Maryland unit is 9306, he added.

But in order to reach the ultimate strength, General Recokord said, "Federal assistance in the form of funds, equipment and personnel will be required."

Md. Tobacco Growers Defer Inspection Vote

Washington, April 2 (AP). — A grower referendum on a proposal to extend Agriculture Department inspection and grading services to Maryland tobacco markets was postponed today.

The voting by mail was originally set for April 5-7 inclusive. The department said it was postponed to a date yet to be set to give growers more time to consider the proposed services.

Approval by at least two-thirds of the growers voting is required. The markets which would be affected are at Baltimore, Hughesville, La Plata, Upper Marlboro and Waldorf.

Death Toll Rises to 3 In 2 Crashes

Alexandria Man Succumbs 6 Hours After 3 Autos Collide in Va.

The death toll in two traffic accidents in nearby Virginia and Maryland rose to three yesterday when a 35-year-old Alexandria Va., man died of injuries suffered in a three-car crash.

The dead:

Raymond L. Butler, 34, of 4523 39th st., Brentwood, Md., killed instantly about 1 a. m., when his car collided with a heavy truck in Bladensburg.

Eugene Cash, 35, of 924 Franklin st., Alexandria, Va., who died yesterday, six hours after the car in which he was riding figured in a three-auto collision on Highway No. 1, three miles south of Alexandria.

Dewey H. Campbell, 31, of Route 4, Alexandria, who died a few minutes after the same crash.

Police said Butler's car rammed the side of a 2-ton truck operated by Arthur Carter, 43, of 40 K st. ne., at Kenilworth ave. and Quincy st. Carter was booked on technical charges of reckless driving and manslaughter and released on $2000 bond for a hearing April 19.

Cash and Campbell were occupants of a car that rammed one auto, then careened to the middle of the highway and crashed head-on into a third car. A third occupant of the car, Hubert Campbell, 21, of 912 Franklin st., Alexandria, no relation to the dead man, is in fair condition in Alexandria Hospital.

Two other persons were injured, none seriously. They are: Warrant Officer Jess Willard Hanson, 30, of the Naval Air Station, driver of the car that was struck head-on, and his wife, Mrs. Evelyn Hanson, 29, of 555 Newcomb st. se.

Occupants of the southbound car that was rammed were uninjured. It was driven by Chief Pharmacist's Mate Raymond Svendsen of the Naval Receiving Station here.

Two Children Hurt

Automobiles also injured two children yesterday—one of them struck by a car by his mother. They were:

Samuel Collette, jr., 8, of 2371 Champlain st. nw., who suffered a possible fracture of the right shoulder when struck in the 1700 block of Columbia rd. nw. Driver of the car was listed as Francis R. Milfrod, 44, of 3905 Oliver st., Hyattsville, Md.

David Hall, 7, of 9013 Bradford ave., Silver Spring, Md., who suffered minor bruises when a car, backing out of a driveway with his mother at the wheel, knocked him to the paving.

Alexandria Officer, 4 Others Are Injured

White Marsh, Md., April 2 (AP).—Five Army and Navy officers were injured today when their automobile ran off a fog-clouded road and struck a telephone pole on the outskirts of Baltimore.

Baltimore County police said the injured were:

Lieut. Col. Henry N. Parrish, 35, of Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Comdr. Theodore J. Martiens, 30, Bellewood, Ill.

Lieut. Henry W. Cole, USAAF, of Bear Lake, Mich.

Two Essex ambulances brought the victims to city hospitals. All but Colonel Parrish later were transferred to the Army hospital at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds. Parrish could not be moved.

Numbers Raid Nets 5 Suspects

Police numbers' raiders yesterday closed in on a long-watched house in Northwest Washington and arrested five persons, three in flight.

The raid at 2:30 p. m. at 4356 Hayes st. ne. also netted $1600 in cash, large quantities of numbers' slips, adding machines and telephones.

Police Lieut. Roy Blick said he would notify Treasury Department agents of the money found for possible income tax investigation.

Earlier yesterday, police raided a cigar store at 2304 Georgia ave. nw. and arrested the proprietor, Theodore A. Dorsey, 29, of 2606 Georgia ave. nw., for operation of a lottery and possession of numbers' slips.

Arrested in the raid on the Hayes st. dwelling were: Andrew P. Gordon, 29, and wife, Evelyn B., 28, of that address; the husband's cousin, Robert A. Gordon, 29, of 3536 Warder st. nw.; Robert E. Young, 37, of 4825 Sheriff rd. ne., and Herman Threats, 37, of 806 52d st. ne.

Robert Young and Robert Gordon, Lieut. Blick said, ran out the front door and were chased afoot to a barber shop at 4907 Deane ave. When police caught them inside, he said, the barber obligingly pointed out a sack of numbers' slips he said the two had hidden under a radiator.

Threats, Lieut. Blick said, was caught as he attempted to jump through a rear window.

The vice squad head said the money was found in a 400-pound iron safe which was imbedded in two feet of concrete. Police left untouched a 1947 Cadillac convertible found in the garage there.

Spiritualist, Another Woman Are Charged in Bank Theft

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

YOU CAN'T SEE 'ER—Sans crystal ball, Madame Yvonne, the seeress, leaves Alexandria Police Headquarters with her head hid in a coat. Attorney James Raby lends assistance to Madame, who is Eulalia Myers, 50, of 3944 Benning rd. ne.

A Washington spiritualist called on for advice over disposal of $27,000 stolen from the First National Bank of Alexandria, Va., yesterday had problems of her own.

The seer, Eulalia Meyers, 50, of 3944 Benning rd. ne., known among answer-seekers as Madame Yvonne, was charged with grand larceny and released on $7500 bond.

Charles along with her was Mrs. Alice Briggs(37, of 825 R st. nw., wife of the bank's former janitor. Briggs has admitted taking the money from a night deposit box last June 18, police say. About $18,000 of the loot was in cash, the remainder checks.

Hearings Friday

Mrs. Briggs was released on $5000 bond. Both are scheduled for hearing in Alexandria Civil and Police Court Friday.

Madame Yvonne, her bond signed by a bonding firm representative, left the Alexandria Police Station in a chauffeur-driven Cadillac.

Seventy-two hours of questioning and information from David Briggs, the 36-year-old former janitor, produced this chain of events, according to Detective Lieut. Russell A. Hawes:

Briggs' sister, Mrs. Lula Kennedy, 2238 12th st. nw., said he came to her home and told her he had won a lot of money on a numbers play and that if he should get locked up, she was to tell Mrs. Briggs the money was locked in a piano at the Briggs home.

Mrs. Kennedy said she thought Mrs. Briggs should know about the money anyway—and told her.

Mrs. Briggs, still thinking it was numbers play money, she said, found it in the piano, but guessed it was stolen when she saw the bank's name stamped on the bag.

Then she called Madame Yvonne for advice.

The spiritualist admitted bringing the money back to Washington, but said she had turned it over to someone else.

She denied, Lieutenant Hawes said, that she had given Briggs money and told him to leave town. Briggs said he left town nine days after the robbery. He was arrested in Detroit and the stolen checks were found atop an Alexandria roof several days after the robbery.

The money was placed in the bank's night depository after store-closing hours June 18 by the J. C. Jenney Co. Briggs took it from the deposit box, his confession said.

Third Woman Released

Alexandria police have been questioning a third woman, but she was released yesterday without charge.

Another complicating angle is the effort of Attorney John M. Holzworth to free a man said by police to be Madame Yvonne's husband. He is J. A. Matthews, now serving a 10 to 30-year term for carnal knowledge.

Holzworth is seeking a writ of habeas corpus for Matthews on grounds that his client was "framed" because of his knowledge of the bank robbery.

The attorney, who was instrumental in bringing the robbery charge against Briggs, has announced he also will defend him.

Two Clerks Held for Larceny After $2500 'Holdup' Report

Two grocery store clerks were held for grand jury action yesterday on grand larceny charges stemming from alleged theft of $2500 in a holdup which police said never occurred.

Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy set bond of $1000 each for Charles DeBoard, 22, of 1608 Quarles st. ne., and Charles S. Teague, 19, of 727 12th st. nw.

DeBoard, who had reported he was held up and robbed of $2500 in store receipts, also was sentenced to a fine of $25 or 30 days in jail for making a false report to police.

Detective Lieut. Edgar E. Scott, new head of the robbery squad, said the pair confessed yesterday in the presence of police and their employers. DeBoard, $40-a-week clerk of the Safeway store at 717 11th st. nw., later told reporters he was desperate over doctor bills for one of his two children, ill for more than a year.

After questioning DeBoard on his story of how a bandit sidled up behind him Thursday afternoon near 10th and G sts. nw., police released him to keep a rendezvous with his alleged accomplice Thursday night at a tavern in northeast Washington. Teague, arrested at the meeting, led detectives to the loot, cached in a garbage can one block from the tavern, the police said.

An envelope containing $2511, or $2 short of the amount taken, was recovered. Teague, police reported, said he spent the $2 in taxicab fares, according to police, and told them he needed money to get married.

New Police Job Tests To Be Asked By Barrett

Only 46 Rookies Accepted From 1550 Who Took Last Examination

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett announced yesterday he would ask new civil service examinations to fill patrolmen vacancies.

The tests may be needed, Barrett said, to fill some of 70 positions still open after only 46 rookie policemen were accepted from 1550 applicants who took the February examinations conducted by the Civil Service Commission.

Barrettt said the department also would need a reserve list of eligible patrolmen in event Congress approves the new budget request for 205 additional men.

Notice Filed by 2590

Some 2590 persons, Barrett reported, filed notice of intention to take the police examination. Of this number, 1550 appeared and took the written tests and 1077 passed. Of these, the commission after its own investigations lopped off 403, certifying the other 674 as eligible to take physical examinations.

The disqualified included those not living within a 12 mile radius of the Capitol; those who concealed facts in their applications; those who sought Park Police duty only; those under 21; those over 31, and those who made mistakes in filling out their applications.

Because the Police Department wanted to speed things up, it took over the job of physical examinations ordinarily handled by Civil Service staffs. And here's what happened, said Barrett:

Of the 674 certified, 445, the first batch, were notified to take the physical examinations. Thirty failed to show up, and of the 415 examined only 84 were found physically fit.

Seven Rejected on Character

Seven were later rejected for "bad-character" reasons. Sixteen others declined appointments after they had been found fully qualified; another 15 declined between their physical fitness examinations and police investigations of their character references.

All that left 46 applicants, including eight Negroes, ready and fit for duty who were appointed to the force yesterday to help fill the 116 vacancies.

The second batch of the 674, numbering 229, certified by Civil Service Commission as eligible for physical tests has not yet been notified to appear for examinations.

From this number and from those physically disqualified who can prove their defects have been corrected the Police Department hopes to fill the remaining 70 vacancies.

Barrett doubts that it can be done.

Sole Suspect Is Released In Rape Case

Police yesterday released their sole suspect under questioning for the rape of a 24-year-old mother, attacked Thursday night in the basement laundry of her apartment.

The 17-year-old suspect was exonerated of blame after close police check of his alibi. Detectives said his neatly shined shoes, showing no scuffings, were clinching proof he was not guilty.

Police had picked him up in the neighborhood shortly after the rape of violence in the apartment house at 1434 Harvard st. nw. He answered generally the victim's description of her assailant, police said.

The woman told police she was preparing to do laundry for her two small children when she was seized from behind. Despite her screams, she said, he threw her to the concrete floor, raped her, and fled.

She described him as a young Negro, five feet eight inches tall and weighing about 160 pounds. He was wearing a dark brown leather jacket and brown trousers, she said.

Area News in Brief

6 Street Snapshot Makers Arrested

Six sidewalk photographers, plying their trade in front of the White House, were arrested by Third Precinct police yesterday, following a telephone call from the Executive Mansion.

They were taken to the precinct station house, where, after a consultation and scanning of the manual, the police came up with a charge of "incommoding sidewalk."

All six photographers elected to forfeit $10 collateral each. They were: Joseph Marcus, 30, of 1720 West Virginia ave. ne.; Max Conn, 37, of the Bond Building; Charles Ross, 54, of 622 Maryland ave. ne.; Isidore Sam Meisler, 30, of 4107 51st st., Bladensburg, Md.; Marshall Lee Ray, 35, of 1736 G st. nw., and Alexander Hamilton Adams, 42, of 2032 Lee Highway, Arlington, Va.

The camera men insisted there was nothing to it. "This happens every once in a while," they explained, and went back to taking photographs—but not in front of the White House.

Citizens Club Protests Light Jail Sentences

The denunciation by the Arkansas Avenue Citizens Association of "apparent light sentencing" of criminals here brought varied comment yesterday from District judges and court attaches.

According to Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court, "each case must be considered by itself," without adherence to any inflexible sentencing formulas.

The civic group issued its blast at small sentences at a meeting Thursday night. Support of the resolution by members included a plea for a "return to the practice of many years ago—of taking a whip and lashing until the blood flows."

Advises Lectures

Justice Laws conceded that in times of crime waves or general crime increases, "sentences should generally be heavier." Referring to his own children for an example, however, he said a stern lecture might do good for one, while a coaxing might serve just as well for another.

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson said that in view of the citizens' association's criticism, he "will resurvey my own sentencing procedure."

Attributing "some merit" to the resolution, which was proposed by former Federation of Citizens Association President Clifford H. Newell, Neilson said:

"All judges, including myself, should consider the problem of sentencing to see if we are doing all we can to improve the crime situation. Perhaps judges should be more prone to give maximum sentences, especially in the cases of repeaters."

Corporal Punishment Out

Joseph N. Sanford, Municipal Court probation officer, dismissed the idea of corporal punishment.

"Whipping posts and such things are from a time before I was born. We don't consider them."

United States Attorney George Morris Fay explained that he and his assistants are forbidden by regulation to recommend specific sentences to judges. He said, too, that his office "is making every effort from the prosecution angle to suppress crime."

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, could not be reached for comment.

Meanwhile, R. Morgan Simmons, president of the company, said he was prepared to enter a conference with a committee representing Local 284 of the United Furniture Workers of America (CIO).

"The company cannot and will not bow to demands for a wage increase at this time," he added, however.

A. C. Emerson, union business agent, made no comment on the strike today.

U. S. Attorney Seeking More Investigators

Fay's staff has dropped from a peak of 7 men in 1943 to a present strength of one police lieutenant assigned only part time to Fay's office, and two police privates, one of them an investigator, and the other assigned to handle non-support cases in Municipal Court, but now on military leave.

Fay said he needs two additional investigators immediately, could use seven men, and with additional space, he would prefer double that number.

He pointed out that Manhattan, with three time the population of Greater Washington, has 75 investigators from the police department on the District Attorney's staff. Washington is among the least well equipped of all large cities so far as investigators are concerned, Fay said.

The prosecutor stated that within a week he will confer with Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, in an effort to reach agreement on reinforcements.

The investigative unit was cut as a result of a manpower shortage in the Police Department during the war. Following that, additional men were transferred in accordance with a Police Department policy of "putting men on the street."

The investigators are Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon and Pvts. John H. McHale and Milan Duley.

4 Marines Say China Captors Bore U. S. Guns

Tsingtao, China, April 2 (U.P.).—Four United States Marines released by Chinese Communists after three months imprisonment said today the Chinese fired on them and then tried to indoctrinate them with Communist propaganda printed in Moscow.

A fifth companion, Pfc. Charles Brayton, was slain. He died when denied first aid.

The liberated men are Corpl. William Pollard, Pfc. Carroll W. Dirkerson, Pvt. Robert Hart and Pfc. Thomas Kapodistria.

Pollard said apparently they were freed only because they were able to convince th Reds they were not sent into Communist territory to create an incident.

Pollard said they were treated well on the whole and were given sufficient food—mostly beans and other vegetables.

The hunting party, he said, drove into a small village, where there were militiamen in the streets.".

"We thought they were nationalist militia because they were armed with American weapons," he added. "They allowed us to pass through the village. About two miles past this village someone opened fire on us. We all jumped out of the jeep and took cover behind it.

"They apparently were pretty poor shots, or they would have killed us all."

Once captured they began a trek from one village to another, he said. For nine days he was separated from the others and subjected to intense questioning.

Constantly they moved, always under guard, he said. After each move, they were questioned and drilled in Red doctrines.

Mysterious Riots In Stockholm Blamed on Youths

Stockholm, Sweden, April 2 (U.P.).—The mysterious riots which have broken the usual calm of Stockholm's south side for the past week were solved today.

The solution had nothing to do with communism, threats of war, domestic politics or labor strife.

Police officials blamed bored boys and girls craving excitement and certain unpopular policemen for the melees, which sent 10 persons to hospitals and 90 to jail.

The problem could be solved easily, officials said, if youngsters were given an outlet for their energies in social and athletic clubs, of which there is a shortage.

Two afternoon newspapers immediately offered handball matches and musical entertainment.

Bright Marguerite Tate Recalls Crash in Alps In 'Twelve Walked Away'

By Marie McNair

MARGUERITE GAYLORD TATE is the woman I'd most like to be. Her sense of humor will keep a whole room full of people holding their sides. She laughs at herself and the world. She's bright as a button, and she has written a book which threatens to become a best seller.

MRS. McNAIR

The wife of Brig. Gen. Ralph Tate has lived in Washington off and on since she first came to Edgewood Arsenal as a bride of her childhood sweetheart 28 years ago. She came back again 10 years ago and stayed until she joined her husband in Europe in 1946, as a member of the first boatload of service wives allowed overseas.

Her book, "Twelve Walked Away," which will appear on the bookstands next week, is a personal account of a plane crash in the Swiss Alps, with her son, Ralph, jr., the pilot and his mother a passenger. It's the only mountain crash on record where every passenger "walked away."

"Toughy" Tate as her friends call her, talked her way out of that one, she says. She knew as a good Army wife she must be an obedient passenger.

So she hid her maternal fears and, pulling herself out of the wreckage, just began to talk.

Already at work on her third book, her second, "You'll Never Get Rich" is a subject she's had in her mind during her 30 years as an Army officer's wife. In it she scores civilians for treating the military like a stepchild in peacetime.

"I've always known I would write," she says, "even with my mouth full of clothespins, I was composing."

"I got the idea of writing in prayer meeting back in Owosso, Mich.," the author continued. "I always got hungry for some reason, but I would listen carefully, as mother gave me a penny for every idea I would bring home."

The mother of three grown children, Mrs. Tate is a meticulous housekeeper, can "cook, sew, knit, crochet, tat—and scrub." She says, "I can't go into a room even now without a dust mop," yet there's nothing of the fuss-budget about her.

She plays the piano and sings, too—"bawdy songs when the duds have gone home."

MRS. EDWARD G. ROBINSON'S biggest booster is Mildred Pepper, wife of the Senator from Florida.

The wife of the bad man of the movies has turned her ranch house out in California into a glass walled studio, is working like mad to finish 50 paintings to take to Europe with her when she sails April 21 from New York. She's scheduled to exhibit the collection at the Andre Weil gallery in Paris. Gladys Robinson took up painting in comparatively recent years and her instant success was phenomenal. In a New York showing she sold 85 per cent of her pictures right from the walls. One of her prize pictures from a personal standpoint is an interior—a big comfortable country kitchen in her grandmother's home at Valley Forge, Pa. The house is now part of the Valley Forge Village Memorial, but that corner of it, forever hers, hangs in her California house.

Encouraged by his wife's success the movie star has taken palette and brush in hand for a try on canvas. He's proceeding with caution and a delicate touch where Mrs. Robinson's bold technique is developed by use of a palette knife and plenty of paint.

AND SPEAKING of politics—just who isn't these days—big money, they say, is being placed on the renomination of President Truman and his reelection with Secretary of State George Marshall as Vice President.

"They're saying" also that Will Clayton won't get the job as administrator of the ERP program because of possible influence of the State Department where he served recently as Undersecretary for Economic Affairs.

The Washington Post

Her husband is the son of Mrs. Jose del Carmere Nazario. A reception following the ceremony took place at the Statler Hotel

To Be Visitor

Mrs. Robert Patterson, wife of the former Secretary of War, will arrive in Washington Monday to spend a few days with Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, wife of Lieutenant General Collins, at Fort McNair. She is coming for the Jango meeting and tea to be held Tuesday at St. John's Parish Hall, 3240 O st., at 4 p. m.

Wives of Congress Take Meat Cutting Lessons

By Genevieve Reynolds

Watch out, Mr. Butcher! When a congressional wife shows up in the market, she's going to be chocked full of knowledge about choice cuts, how much tail on the porter house she should get. Moreover, she might be able to give a few tips on where to start cutting the rib for a roast and where for stew beef. Approximately 300 of them boned up on the scientic steer whacking yesterday at a tea in the Congressional Club's headquarters.

The spacious rooms were transformed into a meat market for the demonstration put on by a meat products company of Cincinnati. It all started when club president, Mrs. Clifford Davis, read of a similar class back in her home State, Tennessee. Immediately, she got in touch with former Ohio Representative Jacob E. Davis, now vice president of the company. As a result of the demonstration two charitable institutions—the Baptist Home for Children in Bethesda and the House of Mercy on Klingle rd.—got a supply of choice beef after the party.

The Sight Method

"Until recently the average meat market customer was pretty much at the mercy of the man behind the counter," explained Walter Fitzgibbon, director of meat merchandising for the company who spoke at the demonstration. "The customer bought meat on the recommendation of the meat cutter who held up a cut and asked, 'how does this look to you'? Human nature being what it is, he probably was showing the customer the better end or the most attractive side of the cut, saying nothing about the concealed bone or excessive fat."

He went on to point out the meat department of food business lacked the standardization which the grocery department had for years. While groceries come in cans or boxes with the name, contents, weight and descriptive labels, no cut of meat ever carried a tag which told how much bone, fat or tough connective tissue was included.

Mr. Fitzgibbon said that his company is bringing standardization to retail meat selling through its standard method of cutting. This method of cutting simply means that less bone and fat are sold to the customer and the less tender sections of which require different cooking are trimmed off the high priced cuts and sold as cheaper cuts at much lower prices, according to Mr. Fitzgibbon.

Steer Is Butchered

Joseph Mills, director of training for the company, handled the actual demonstrations, while trained butchers cut up a hind and forefront of a steer into retail portions.

Glimpsed in the audience were Mrs. Raymond E. Baldwin, wife of the Connecticut Senator; Mrs. Karl Le Compte, Mrs. Harry McGregor, Mrs. John L. McMillan, Mrs. Albert Thomas, Mrs. John J. Riley, all wives of Representatives. Also Mrs. Mike Mansfield, wife of the Montana Representative; Mrs. E. H. Hendrick, wife of the West Virginia Representative; Mrs. Paul J. Kilady of Texas, Mrs. Clinton Anderson and hundreds of others.

Return to New Orleans

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Randolph Saal have returned to their home in New Orleans after a visit here with their daughters, Mrs. Horace Pack and Mrs. Samuel Kaufman.

House Tour To Continue Here Today

Lovely old Georgetown houses were open to the public yesterday for the benefit of St. John's Episcopal Church of Georgetown. The two-day tour which took in houses west of Wisconsin ave. yesterday, today will include houses east of Wisconsin.

Along N st., which used to be known as Gay st., is a block of houses built in the early nineteenth century. Called Cox's Row, after the first mayor of Georgetown, it makes an impressive array of Federal colonial architecture.

The first house on yesterday's tour was in this block owned by Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell White. French antiques, soft brocades and stacks of books gave it an old world charm. The second house in the block, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, was beautifully furnished in colors of rust, yellow, olive green and sky blue. It has an uncluttered appearance, each piece of furniture standing to perfection on highly polished floors.

One of the most individual houses is the one owned by Mrs. H. Edwin Rainals Konrup. The drawing room and dining room were gold with touches of cherry red and light blue satin. On the baby grand rested Venetian glass candelabra and against mirrored panel were Bristol sconces.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry LeRoy Jones opened their house on 34th street. The house is an artistic one of charm and gayety.

The old drawing room in the house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Hooker, jr., on O street, and the dining room in the house next door, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey C. Parker, were two of the loveliest rooms on the tour.

Anyone looking for ideas on how to do a house would put in a worthwhile hour or two on the tour today. Doorways, carvings, color schemes, flowers, all combine to make a memorable picture of beauty.

Today's tour starts at 1224 30th st., the home of Sir John and Lady Balfour. Other houses are at 3123 Dumbarton, home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon C. Bolton; 1633 29th st., home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bradley; 1339 29th st., home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Burling, jr.; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman at 3130 P st.; Representative and Mrs. Christian A. Herter at 3108 P st.; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lee at 1344 30th st.; Mrs. Henry Leonard at 3038 N st.; Mr. and Mrs. Duer McLanahan at 2823 Q st., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt at 3023 Q st.

APPROXIMATELY 300 wives of the Nation's lawmakers turned out yesterday to learn the latest technique on beef cutting. From now on they'll be able to tell their butcher, "that tail on the porterhouse is stew meat, not part of the steak. You can't charge me 90 cents a pound for that." Mrs. Karl LeCompte, wife of the Iowa Representative (left), and Mrs. Mike Mansfield, wife of the Montana Representative (right) are shown rib roasts by James McGee of Kentucky, an employe of a packing company which gave a meat-cutting demonstration at the Congressional Club's regular Friday tea in the clubhouse

Washington Club Fetes Mrs. Waller at Reception

Approximately 150 members of the Washington Club donned their gayest spring finery and turned out a reception yesterday afternoon honoring their new president, Mrs. Absalom Waller.

The handsome headquarters, which has all the elegance of the Victorian era, were bright with varicolored spring flowers with yellow forsythia predominating in the high ceilinged drawing rooms and spacious dining room.

Wearing handsome, long dinner dresses the governors of the club received guests with Mrs. Waller. These included the two vice presidents, Mrs. Gilbert H. Grosvenor and Miss Grace C. Burton, and the treasurer, Miss Emma T. Strider.

Other governors in the receiving line were Miss Temple Bailey, Mrs. Paul Stanley Bond, Mrs. LeRoy Eakin, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. John H. Hanna, Mrs. Charles M. Marsh, Mrs. Arthur H. McConville, Miss Alice Riley, Mrs. Wintemute Sloan, Mrs. Bates Warren and Mrs. G. Louis Weller.

Taking turns at the tea table were former presidents of the club, among whom were Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. C. Willard Hayes, Mrs. Whitman Cross and Mrs. Frank Forest Bunker.

Committee chairmen assisting at the tea table and with introductions included Mrs. Thaddeus M. Jones, Mrs. Norman T. Anderson, Mrs. William C. Van Vleck, Mrs. Mark Eldridge, Mrs. John L. Steinbarger, Mrs. E. Horace Siegler, Mrs. Edward C. Stone and Miss Blanche Street.

Dispensing punch were Mrs. Douglas P. Birnie, Mrs. Charles W. Fairfax, Mrs. Ralph H. Hallett, Mrs. William Felton Ham, Mrs. C. Willard Hayes, jr., Mrs. Edward A. Keys, Mrs. George J. Newgarden, Mrs. William F. Pearson, Miss Mary Phelps, Mrs. James H. Patten, Mrs. Lester Wilson and Mrs. W. E. Safford.

Old Dominion Kennel Club Plans Dog Show for April 24

One of the first outdoor events of the spring season will be the Old Dominion Kennel Club's annual all-breed Dog Show on Saturday, April 24. It will take place at the Municipal Ballpark in Alexandria and proceeds will be for the benefit of Children's Hospital and the St. Mary's and St. Paul's Boys Clubs of Alexandria.

A distinguished panel of judges has been announced by the chairman of the show, A. R. Forbush, and it is expected that more than a thousand dogs of the East, South and Midwest will be entered in the event.

Heading the list of judges is Mrs. L. W. Bonney of Oyster Bay, L. I., who will choose Best in Show. Coming from Ohio is Mrs. Anna H. Vinyard who will pass upon most of the Toy Breeds. Other judges will come from such cities as Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Providence, Baltimore and Detroit.

Among those from Washington and suburbs who plan to participate are Col. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon Green, who will show English setters; and Mrs. J. Robert Smith, wife of Colonel Smith. She will show several of her cocker spaniels. In addition Mrs. Smith will act as hostess during the show and arrange for luncheon to be served at the ball park.

Your Baby and Mine

'Taking Ways' Are Common With Children

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

A mother cannot be blamed for feeling shocked when her sweet child takes something that does not belong to him and then lies about it with a straight face. She is excused for feeling shame and humiliation and a sense of defeat.

But, even in families where there is a practice of honesty—and unfortunately in all families there is not—children are wont, at times, to take the property of another.

This behavior is commonplace in young children who have not developed a sense of "mine and thine"; and in children of about 7 years of age whose sense of acquisitiveness is acute.

Pennies disappear from the home pocketbook or from teacher's; the corner grocer or druggist complains of small articles the child snatches, or, the child comes home proudly with school supplies or children's possessions too valuable for mother to be fooled that they were given to him.

This is all part of the picture of growing up. It does not, in such case, argue that the child will never be either truthful or honest. It does argue a faulty sense of property values and the meaning of property, both of which must be taught by word and example.

Some children with no possessions of their own have no way of determining how another child feels about those he has. Some want to possess something owned by a child they admire. Like the blood of the warrior drunk by his captor, he feels himself to rise in stature when he wears the clothes or handles the belongings of someone he deems to be superior.

These are childish mistakes; but the parent should not cover up for the child. He needs to suffer for his mistakes so that he will not make them again.

How to Frame Daumier Prints

I have some Daumier prints (black and white) which I should like to frame for the study. Have you any suggestions other than white mat and black frame? Also, I have a copy of "Pictures of People," by Charles Dana Gibson, published in 1906, and I thought it would be amusing to frame a few just now. They are also black and white. How do you suggest I handle them? K. R. S.

Prints such as the Daumier ones are often yellowed with age, so that a deep ivory mat and a walnut or other natural wood frame would be appropriate. "Antiqued" colored frames might also be attractive.

You might enjoy the new patented changeable frames or picture brackets for the Gibson prints. These have movable glass panels which slide in a grooved molding at top and bottom, enabling you to easily change your pictures. They are particularly nice for groupings of pictures. Not having a four-sided frame, they display the picture in an uncluttered fashion. A firm which does picture framing should have them or be able to tell you where they can be purchased.

Some weeks ago in The Washington Post, I saw a suggestion to keep a "charcoal brick" in the refrigerator to keep it sweet-smelling. I have tried in vain to find one at drug stores, dime stores, and a housewares store on G st. Do you know where I can buy charcoal bricks?
M. P.

The housewares sections of several large department stores here have them, or expect to get them in soon.

Will you give me instructions on cleaning antelope gloves?
B. B. C.

If the gloves were sold as washable, they can be laundered with rich suds of mild soap in lukewarm water. Thin leather gloves should be washed off the hands, heavier ones on. (Thin ones may tear or rip on the hands when they are wet and soft.) Whichever method you use, be sure to turn them and wash inside to remove any soil left by your hands. Rinse several times in lukewarm water. Pat out excess moisture with a turkish towel. Spread gloves lengthwise gently and blow into each glove to puff out. Lay the shaped gloves flat on a dry turkish towel and let them dry slowly, away from direct sunlight or any source of artificial heat. When gloves are almost dry, "fingerpress" them gently by stretching the leather in both directions. This makes the gloves soft and pliable when dry. If gloves get too stiff as they dry, roll them in a damp towel for a few minutes and then manipulate the leather gently while it is still damp.

If the gloves were not sold as washable, it will be safest to send them to a reliable dry cleaner.

An exciting routine

Then try this, Petunia! Cook them in the usual way . . . then use canned mushroom soup for sauce—thinned, and served piping hot.

Bishop-Bracken

Has anyone discovered a way to remove scratch cover polish from bed linens or a cotton blouse? I have tried a "degreasing" preparation, chlorine bleach and turpentine. None helped, except that the bleach dulled the stain. However, I'm afraid repeated applications of it will rot the material. E. N. M.

Any suggestions, readers?

In your column of March 28 C. B. T. wanted to know the best way to wash a patchwork quilt. I have 10 such quilts my mother made years ago and left me after her death. They have all been successfully washed in my washer. I always use mild soap flakes, such as one uses for lingerie and hosiery, and I make a thick suds in hot water, then dilute to warm. After washing about 5 or 6 minutes, I put them through the wringer, then rinse in two waters, one warm and one cold. It's best to wash and dry them on a warm windy day, hanging them outside.
I. M. W.

Perhaps you could make a suggestion that would clear up a problem for me. Three months ago I lost my husband. I succeeded in sending notes of thanks to all for their floral tributes. However, I never was able to answer the many beautiful letters of sympathy which I received. My family tells me it isn't necessary to answer these notes. What is your opinion on the question? I felt they should be answered because I appreciated them immensely but, because of the terrible shock I had received, I have not been able to take care of everything. Is it too late to do anything about showing my appreciation, or should I just do nothing.
F. M. B.

Some word of appreciation is usually sent to those who write letters of sympathy after a loss. It is not too late to do this and I'm sure your friends will understand that you just haven't felt up to it before. Those whom you are likely to see soon can be thanked orally. Messages can even be sent by a member of the family, who might say to a friend: "Mother asked me to tell you how very much she appreciated your letter." To those whom one is not likely to see, a very simple note of thanks can be sent. You might, for instance, use the foldover "informals" and just write a line or two, such as "Thank you for your sweet letter. It meant a great deal to me." If you still do not feel up to writing the notes, some member of the family can write them for you, something like "Mother has asked me to write you how much she appreciated your kind letter of sympathy."

Can you tell me how to get rid of dauber wasps in the attic I have just had decorated as a guest room? Destroying their nests doesn't help as they come right back to build again.
T. J. W.

Spray a 5 per cent DDT oil solution on screens, window frames and wall surfaces where the insects will be crawling. The DDT deposit left by the spray will kill them, even though it does not affect them rapidly. If there are still wasp nests in the room, spray the nests well with 5 per cent DDT oil solution. Or use a duster and blow a 10 per cent DDT powder into the nest. Make sure you apply the DDT from beneath the nest, so that it will enter the individual cells. Wait until the wasps are quiet at dusk or after dark to avoid getting stung.

In my silver set, I have luncheon forks and salad forks. Which should I use when serving a dessert such as cake? M. M.

Follow Ida Jean Kain's 18-Day Diet

Enroll the Family in Reducing Bout

"WELL heck, who wants to be slim anyway—I'd rather eat!" That was our model's reaction after a few weeks of half-hearted dieting, before she got into the swing of things. So, she ate—and gained back all she had lost, and an extra pound to boot!

Barbara Anne has always loved to eat, ever since she was a roly-poly little girl of 5 asking for "mufflers." "Mufflers?" the puzzled waiter queried. It turned out she wanted waffles, with lots of sirup. Well, her fattening food habits not only grew up with her, but on her. Her favorite foods? "FOOD!" Barbara exclaimed.

It wouldn't be fair to let you think our model lost her 20 pounds and 20 inches without a struggle. Take it from Barrie, the hardest thing about dieting is not the starting—it's the starting over! Then it's the keeping on that does the reducing. Is it worth it?

"I'm so very thankful that I finally had enough spunk to stick with it! It's wonderful to be rid of those 20 pudgy pounds. I'm so happy I could shout it from the housetops!"

Here are some tips she passed along: Keep the scales close at hand, and don't think they're wrong or jump up and down if you haven't lost! Don't sip ice water between bites of food—one sip and you feel as if you have a little more room. To stave off that wan feeling about 4, have a cup of hot tea or a glass of buttermilk or a big red apple. To keep from feeling sorry for yourself, have some little extra dish such as a luscious fresh pear or a special salad—something the rest of the family do not have.

If you can get the family pulling for you, that's half the battle. Barrie's little daughter, age 6, was a wonderful help. As our "dieter" would reach for another hot biscuit, Shirley would say sweetly, "Isn't that fattening, mommie? You said you were only going to eat one!" That did it!

There is probably no dieter that ever had a harder time getting started or staying with it than our model . . . but once she finally made up her mind to see it through, she did beautifully. Here are the changes after a single month of really working at it: 10 pounds lost; 9¾ inches off—3 off the waist, 2 off the stomach, 1½ off the the hips, 2 off the thighs, 1 off the calf, ¼ off the ankle; and dress size down from 16 to 14 . . . glory be!

Her husband said, "Honey, you're beginning to look just like a movie star." That was all the incentive she needed to keep on with the program.

Second D. C. Finance Firm Plans to Fold

By S. Oliver Goodman

Stockholders of Security Finance Corp. of Washington will meet April 21 to vote on a proposal to dissolve. Directors at a recent meeting recommended liquidation.

Owen

This is the second local finance firm in recent months to decide on folding. The American Co. this week declared a first liquidating dividend of $60 a common share.

In a letter to stockholders Claude W. Owen, president of Security Finance, blamed "evaporation" of business for the decision to dissolve. He pointed out that "for several years past it has been a rarity for a home improvement job to be financed other than with a Government guaranteed loan and at rates far below what this company could possibly survive on."

On personal loans, he added, banks have made a wholesale entry into this type of business and "are actively seeking such loans at rates which we cannot possibly meet."

As for second trust notes, he said Government guaranteed mortgages do not permit such financing. "In fact, sales to veterans which today constitute a large portion of all home sales are being financed with Government guaranteed mortgages up to 100 per cent of the appraised value."

Security Finance's latest balance sheet showed assets of $425,188, notes receivable $374,078, and 31,510 shares of preferred stock outstanding. The firm is in its twenty-fifth year and has offices in the Investment Building.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Arthur G. Newmyer, former publisher of the Washington Times, yesterday was awarded the Navy's distinguished public service certificate for his wartime work. Newmyer now heads the Washington public relations firm bearing his name. In making the award Secretary of Navy Sullivan said that Newmyer's help and advice on public relations during the war had been invaluable to the Navy.

CLOTHING: Frosty international relations are bringing the clothing industry under the scrutiny of the Army. At the request of the Quartermaster Corps, the Clothing Manufacturers of the U. S. A. is polling its members on their ability to handle Army orders, if and when received. If the Army buys heavily, there will be a corresponding slowdown in production for civilian wear.

ODD LOTS: North American Co. distributed to its stockholders this week another liquidating dividend of three shares of Potomac Electric Power Co. common stock for each 100 shares of North American. Pepco market price dipped fractionally . . . Childs Co., restaurant chain, has emerged from a five-year reorganization period. Each share of Childs 7 per cent preferred stock is exchangeable for one share of new $5.50 preferred stock plus 12 shares of new common stock . . . Airline travel pushed beyond the six-billion passenger-mile for the first time last year and was about one-half of railroad Pullman travel, Air Transport Association reports . . . Studebaker output of 59,187 motor cars in first three months set all-time company record . . . Gwilym A. Price, president of Westinghouse Electric Corp., has been elected a vice president of National Association of Manufacturers.

CONSERVATION: Remember meatless Tuesdays? Apparently few persons do, so Department of Agriculture officials have been conferring here with hotel and restaurant owners looking toward a "modified program" of food conservation which will take meatless Tuesdays off the calendar. The department says we still need to save to be able to feed Europe. Restaurant men say those who observe the day are penalized by the majority who do not.

BOND QUOTAS: Thomas J. Groom, chairman of the District of Columbia Savings Bond Division, yesterday pointed out that the local quota in the coming drive will be 14 million dollars in "E" bonds and 8½ million in "F" and "G" issues. The new purchasing limits for an individual will be $10,000 in "E" for one year and $100,000 a year for the other two types. Groom spoke at a luncheon in the Mayflower attended by press, radio, movie and advertising representatives. The Security Loan Drive will run from April 15 to June 30.

Rent Control Board Ratio Established

In Fairfax

Va. Planning Group Holds 1st Session

The Northern Virginia Regional Planning Commission, formed last winter to provide liaison between communities in solving regional problems, held its first meeting last night in the Fairfax Trial Justice Court.

The representatives from five of the six-member communities discussed problems that would need regional attention and heard offers of support from other Washington and Virginia planning departments.

Areas represented were Fairfax and Prince William Counties, the city of Alexandria and the towns of Falls Church and Manassas. Arlington County has joined the commission but has not yet appointed its members.

The commission discussed, but took no action on, the staff and money necessary for it to function. Present plans call for the body to be financed by appropriations from the member communities in proportion to their population.

Temporary Chairman James J. Corbalis appointed a nomination committee to recommend a slate of offices at the next meeting. The commission received promises of support from the Virginia Planning Board, National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Public Roads Administration and the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin.

Members listed hospitals, jails, sewage disposal and zoning as some problems needing regional attention. Next meeting will be held April 29 in the Fairfax Trial Justice Court at 8 p. m.

Tenant, Landlord Proportion Set In 600-Odd Areas

Advisory boards in the 600-odd rental areas must contain a ratio of one tenant, one landlord and three public interest representatives for each five members, Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods announced yesterday.

The rent boards will be surveyed to determine if they have this proportion of representation to operate under the 1948 Rent Act, Woods said yesterday.

In passing the current law, Congress specifically called for better balanced boards.

1947 Law Critized

Under the 1947 law, which stated only that rent advisory boards should be composed of "representative citizens of the area," there was extensive criticism that many boards were out of balance in favor of landlords. Former Housing Expeditor Frank Creedon attempted to correct this by declaring that tenants and landlords should be evenly represented.

The boards can recommend decontrol of rent areas, a rise in general rent levels, or can make recommendations to Area Rent Directors on individual rent adjustment cases.

Five Members Required

Woods said that changes in board membership in most cases will be made by appointing additional board members. Each board must have at least five members.

Board hearings are to be public, and must be announced in newspapers 15 days and five days before hearings. Where the Expediter disagrees with board findings, cases will be referred to the Emregency Court of Appeals, but boards also have the option of permitting the Expediter's ruling to be final, the Expediter's office said.

2 Technical Changes Made in Rent Control Bill

Senate District Committe Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) yesterday formally reported the new District rent control bill to the Senate with two technical changes.

Instead of the proposed effective date of March 31, 1948, for decontrolling transient hotel rooms and nonhousekeeping rooms in private homes where there are two or less paying tenants, the bill sets the decontrol date as April 30.

The decontrol date for new and reconverted housing accommodations was also changed to April 30, 1948, but will become effective for such housing which reached the market after March 31, 1948.

Like the Federal Rent Control Act, the District bill would continue controls to March 31, 1949, decontrolling most of the accommodations freed from controls under the Federal bill. But it does not authorize long-term leases with rent increases up to 15 per cent as does the Federal bill.

Miss Aler pointed specifically to Mrs. Thomas' civic, cultural and social work as meriting the recognition for her.

Mrs. Thomas responded briefly, saying she felt deep humility and appreciation; that she received pleasure from community work.

Mrs. Thomas is a native of Sewickley, Pa., daughter of Dr. and Mrs. I. B. Chandler. She was graduated from Hood College, at Frederick, Md., in 1915. Mrs. Thomas is the mother of three.

One on the Aisle—

France Details Rise of a Mob

By Richard L. Coe

THE HORRORS OF MOB VIOLENCE—human beings in the mass—generally are avoided by the movies. When they are pictured the result is usually an outstanding film, but one of such apparent cynicism that moviegoers are reluctant to face the facts.

Such a film was "The Ox-Bow Incident," William Welman's fine essay on a lynching in the Nevada of the '80s. Such a film, too, was last fall's "The Long Night," adapted from the still-admired French film, "Daybreak."

In comedy, to be sure, this contempt for mass psychology is coated with the candy of humor, but here again, the very masses which are indirectly scorned are wary of the dish. Such pictures as "The Hucksters," "The Lady Eve," and political satires ("The Great McGinty" and "The Senator Was Indiscreet," to name two) may have titivated the few, but they have been conspicuously ignored by the masses.

From France now comes "Panic," which the Dupont Theater is showing as its second attraction. It is a fine, exciting film, decisively directed by Julien Duvivier.

In "Panic" (adapted from George Simeon's novel, "The Betrothal of Mr. Hire"), we see a small Parisian suburb turn upon a man who prides himself on his individuality. He holds himself aloof from his neighbors and they distrust him completely. When a murder is discovered in their placid midst, it doesn't take much for the real murderer to turn the crowd's suspicion and fury against this man who is not one of them. They know little about him except that he's methodical and lives to himself. Their distrust is fanned to a fury that brings his death.

It is not a pleasant thought, but its cynicism suggests the turmoil of a nation which has seen itself led from tragedy to tragedy. The idea of the writers and director of "Panic" has been to show how an extraordinary event can cause individual weaknesses become the strength of a shameful thing.

The villain of "Panic" directs suspicion away from himself through the thoughtless passion of a woman who has just finished serving a term for him, through the small, clean minds of the village shopkeepers and the flotsam which rises so quickly to the top when the many are confused.

The individual who causes their violence is a curious chap whose activities certainly must cause suspicion. Once a lawyer, his marriage was broken up by his best friend and he has become an astrologer under an assumed name. His infatuation with the girl who leads him into the murderer's trap is his own personal weakness. The man is remarkably well acted by Michael Simon, who may remind you of a vigorous Charles Laughton.

Duvivier's direction emphasizes the little things which add up to this terror. Too, he lingers on irrelevant sequences which assume frightening proportions; in the carnival, which has been set up in the fields where the murdered woman's body was found, you are mesmerized by the central trio in those little cars one finds in amusement parks.

Another facet of "Panic" worthy of note is the music background of Jean Wiener, subtle, insinuating themes that go admirably with the melodrama crescendo.

SHORT TAKES: The National's "An Inspector Calls" company is well represented on current screens . . . Doris Lloyd, who appears in the Metropolitan's next, "Sign of the Ram," will see herself at a Monday morning screening with the reviewers . . . Thomas Mitchell came back to the Little screen yesterday as Joe Tumulty in "Wilson" . . . Leading lady Rene Ray can be seen in "If Winter Comes," which is cropping up still at the neighborhoods . . . If you missed "The Jolson Story," you have four more chances; E. M. Loew's Drive-In on the Richmond highway is running off the Larry Parks musical for four nights beginning tomorrow . . . "Volpone" today begins its second week at the Hippodrome . . . The Johnny Faust marionettes are doing a 30-minute version of "Alice in Wonderland" thrice daily at the Silver Spring Hecht's through next Saturday, 11:30 a. m., 3:30 and 4:30 p. m.; youngsters, says Hecht's, should be escorted by their parents . . . "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the Rudolph Valentino classic, is tomorrow night's offering of Community Education, Inc., at 914 20th st. nw.

"PANIC." Filsonor (Paris) production. Screen play by Charles Spaak and Julien Duvivier. Direction by Duvivier from the novel, "Les Fiancailles de M. Hire," by Georges Simenon. At the Dupont.

No Inhibitions About 'Volpone'

By Richard L. Coe

"VOLPONE," at the Hippodrome, is a deliciously amusing farce that could never have come from the careful caterers of Hollywood.

As a matter of fact, it comes to the New York ave. cinema by a most circuitous route. It stems from a comedy written in 1606 by Shakespeare's pal, Ben Jonson; back in the late '20s it was adapted into frisky French style by Stefan Zweig and done in New York by the Theater Guild, a version still acted by the Comedie Francaise. Several years ago Zweig and Jules Romains polished it up for the French films with juicy parts for the late Harry Baur and Louis Jouvet. This is the sardonic triumph which finally has reached our dilatory Capital.

The story tells of a sly, rich Venetian trader, Volpone, who pretends he's dying to watch the effects on his friends. His closest friend, Mosca, is in on the joke, and with the promise of Volpone's wealth as bait inviegles one man to give gold to Volpone, another to disinherit his son and a third to offer him his wife. The idea of becoming Volpone's wealthy widow also lures the outstanding fille de joie of Venice.

This leads to some bitterly amusing scenes in the "dying" man's bedroom and a titivating trial scene, which follows an upset when the disinherited son walks in on Volpone and the baffled, borrowed wife. The three hopeful inheritors sacrifice their public face to insure their greedy ends, but Mosca, the sly, outwits them all, including Volpone, the Fox.

Broad, Brilliant Acting

There is a rushing, grandiose style in the telling of Jonson's old tale, immensely brightened by the performers. Baur rolls his eyes, squeaks and groans with brilliant aplomb, and Jouvet is coldly aloof to the devilry he achieves. And Charles Dullin, as the moneylender, has a magnificent scene licking his chops over the thought that, old as he is, he's seen the deaths of most of his friends. His cackling is sheer magnificence.

All this lustry, uninhibited behavior is refreshing stuff to watch, particularly to anyone who gets regular doses of the nonoffensive niceties of our homegrown product. The English substitute achieve some of the rowdy force of the soundtrack, but their idiomatic phrasing still suggests that importers of foreign films ought to give far more attention to this lingual key than they do. Its broad, darting characterizations and its lusty, cynical humor make "Volpone" an adventure to relish.

When you say "COME BACK AGAIN" It costs your carrier time and money

YOUR Washington Post carrier has to pay for the papers he's delivered whether he collects from you or not. So when you ask him to "come back later" because you're not prepared for his visit, it's money out of his pocket to meet his bill and time out of his day to call on you again.

If you work for a salary you expect to be paid the first time you see the paymaster on payday. If you run a business you expect your customers to send in their checks for your services promptly. You have expenses of your own and it takes money to meet them. Just so, your carrier depends on payment from you to take care of his expenses.

When you fail him on collection night it may mean a sacrifice of money he needs for immediate personal, home or school purposes. If you ask him to return later he's wasted the time that it took to visit you—and a carrier's life is a busy one. He has a seven-day-a-week early morning job in addition to going to school, doing his homework and joining in outside activities.

Be fair with your carrier. Pay him on time. And if you're moving, notify him in advance. Papers delivered after you've moved do you no good, and your carrier has to pay for them. If you don't see the boy, call NA. 4200 and tell Circulation.

Your carrier will thank you for your cooperation by giving you the best of service.

Va. Mother of 6 Is Charged With Killing Husband

A Buchanan County, Va., mother of six was charged with the pistol-slaying of her husband, the Associated Press reported yesterday, while in the same county clews were sought in the apparent murder of another man.

Under arrest was Mrs. Allie Roberts of the Garden Creek neighborhood. She was charged with shooting her husband, Winifred.

Meanwhile, police probed the slaying of James Harrison, 69, of Ford Branch, near Grundy. Harrison's body was found in his mountain home. Apparently he had been beaten to death with a hammer.

Court Upholds GI Work Rights

Richmond, Va., April 2 (AP).—The United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals has reversed the Roanoke District Court and ruled that a veteran who resigned from the employ of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. to enter the armed forces is entitled to reinstatement with full seniority.

The Trial Court had upheld the company's argument that a veteran, George Kerr Rudisill, had resigned simply to become eligible for the draft, and that he could be taken back into the company only as a new man.

Pointing out that the reemployment provision of the Selective Training and Service Act was to be interpreted liberally, the Appeals Court declared that the act "was intended to benefit all who left positions of safety in order to fight for the country, whether by reason of the force of the draft or of their own free will."

Tests Set May 15 For Va. State Jobs

Richmond, Va., April 2 (AP).—W. I. Hall, supervisor of the State Merit System Council, today announced examinations for positions in three State agencies to be held May 15.

Hall said the tests would be given to establish an eligibility list for positions in the State Welfare and Health Departments, and in the Unemployment Compensation Commission, which includes the Virginia State Employement Service. Several grades of clerical, typing and stenographic jobs are covered.

The examinations for entrance-level positions will be open to persons who expect to graduate from high school this year, Hall said. Applications must be filed before April 24.

Scientists Vote Condon Support

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—The Baltimore Association of Scientists resolved "lend moral support" to Dr. Edward U. Condon, nuclear physicist, and to endeavor to repair his "damaged reputation."

Condon is under scrutiny by the congressional Un-American Activities Committee. He heads the Federal Bureau of Standards.

Dr. David R. Inglis, associate professor of physics at Johns Hopkins University, said. There was danger that newspaper readers, "seeing top scientists kicked around like this, may well abandon any possible plans for scientific careers."

Loudoun Cancer Fund $3500 Drive Started

Leesburg, Va., April 2.—Mrs. Burdette S. Wright, chairman of the Loudoun County cancer fund drive, announced today that the county's quota is $3500. The campaign, now under way, will continue until May 1.

Mrs. Wright will have assisting her: Leesburg, Mrs. Murray Dyer; Purcellville, Mrs. J. Lynn Cornwell; Middleburg and Upperville, Mrs. William Hulbert; Waterford, Mrs. William S. Potterfield; Ashburn, Mrs. Harry Blee; Hillsboro, Mrs. Alfren Stefferud; Lincoln, Mrs. Howard Welsh.

Mary Washington Girls To Give Variety Show

Among the entertainers are Barbara Haislip of Washington, Mary Hardwick of Fort Belvoir, Glenna Graves of Fredericksburg, Ruth Harrell of Richmond and Constance Conley of Pitman, N. J.

Livestock Market Nears Completion

Waynesboro, Va., April 2.—Construction of the Rockfish Valley Livestock Market is expected to be completed within a week, Ben. L. Howell, partner in the firm, has announced. The market is located at Greenfield, about 17 miles from Waynesboro, in Nelson County.

Howell, who has markets at Framville, Chase City and Chatham, will operate the Nelson County market with J. W. Fall of Greenfield. Sales will be held every Thursday, Howell said.

Policeman Promoted

Winchester, Va., April 2.—Police Chief J. Thomas Boyd has announced the promotion of Joseph C. Ritter to the rank of lieutenant in charge of the night force. Lieutenant Ritter was appointed to the Police Department as a night clerk in 1938. He served in the Navy during the last war and was promoted to sergeant after his return to the force. Last October he was graduated from the FBI Academy in Washington.

Most Maryland Traffic Accidents Occur in Daylight

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—Most of Maryland's 17,731 traffic accidents during 1947 happened in broad daylight and in clear weather, an analysis by the National Traffic Safety Council showed today.

Pedestrians were involved in 2598 of all accidents in the Free State, and were to blame in 61.8 per cent of these mishaps, council statistics disclosed. A total of 165 were fatal.

Motor car collisions led the smash-up parade with 10,964. In 67 cases death was the result.

Drivers were held responsible in 61 per cent of their accidents.

Peak hours for traffic accidents, the survey showed, were from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Drunken driving was given as the cuase of 684 accidents. Speeding in 1622 cases, failure to grant right of way to a pedestrian in 2610 instances, and drving on the wrong side of the road in 1077 mishaps.

Bay Crossing Survey Delayed

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—Marylander's won't know for another two months whether a bridge or a combined bridge and tunnel will be built across Chesapeake Bay.

That is the latest word from Robert M. Reindollar, chairman of the State Roads Commission.

Reindollar sees little chance of construction starting until late in October or November. Governor Lane and the commission had hoped that actual work on the project would begin this month.

Reindollar ,gures another six weeks for the Raymond Concrete Pile Co. to complete test borings to determine whether a bridge or a bridge-tunnel would be better. The tests, started last well, were hampered by ice and cold.

"There is no telling how long this will take," Reindollar declares.

The crossing, authorized by the 1947 General Assembly, will connect Sandy Point, near Annapolis, with Kent Island on the Eastern shore.

Waters Receding In Va. Streams

Richmond, Va., April 2 (AP).—Virginia streams, swollen by heavy rains, were subsiding tonight, the United States Whether Bureau here reported.

Reports reaching the bureau from various stations showed that the James River's level dropped from Thursday's high of 27.6 feet at Columbia to 25 today, while Bremo Bluff the level fell from 25 feet to 20.4 feet. The bureau said the river's level also was falling on flood guages in the upper reaches of the James Rivvey valley.

The State Highway Department reported that routes blocked yesterday by swollen stmeas were reopened to traffic.

Amvet Head Says U. S. Let Forces Go to Pot

Cumberland, Md., April 2 (AP).—The United States has allowed its armed forces to "go to pot," Edgar C. Corry, national commander of the American Veterans of World War II, said here last night.

Corry, a Des Moines, Ia., attorney, said the "American people were too anxious to get home from the wars and believed the almighty dollar was the answer to all the world's ills."

The national AMVET chief was here for a meeting of the Maryland section's executive committee.

He told a group of members that the Government was inconsistent when it "ordered" Brazil to rid itself of Communists while permitting "pro-communist units" to operate in the Untied States.

Humphries Heads Waynesboro Rotary

Waynesboro, Va., April 2.—W. Melvin Humphries, vice president of the Waynesboro Publishing Corp., will head the Waynesboro Rotary Club for 1948-49.

Other officers elected yesterday are A. E. Wright, principal of Jackson-Wilson School, vice president, and J. S. Ellis, who was renamed secretary-treasurer. Board of directors elected to serve during 1948-49 are A. J. Newberry, L. H. Fracher, Dr. J. T. Obenschain, Dr. D. E. Watkins, A. E. Wright and W. Melvin Humphries.

NLRB Orders Election At Hagerstown Plant

A collective bargaining election will be held within the next 30 days at the Hagerstown, Md., plant of the Colonial Hardwood Floring Co., where a strike has been in progress six months.

The election was ordered by the National Labor Relations Board on petition of Robert K. Miller, an employe who contended the CIO United Furniture Workers of America no longer represents the majority of the plant's workers.

The name of the UFWA will be on the ballot.

Martinsburg Council Votes, 3-2, for Fast Time

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 2 (AP).—The city council last night voted 3-2 to put Martinsburg on daylight saving time this summer.

Mayor Paul B. Martin explained the action was taken a day before a scheduled public hearing because it promised to swamp the council with delegations which merely would go over ground already considered by the council members.

Pocomoke River Cable

Baltimore, April 2 (AP).—The Army's district engineer has received an application from the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to lay a cable across the Pocomoke River 30 feet downstream from the bridge at Pocomoke City.

Packinghouse officials announced that the price of golden corn has been set at $22 a ton, and the price of white corn at $20. Acreage this year will be approximately the same as last summer.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Has President Truman Revived the 'Kitchen' Cabinet?

Mrs. J. M. Osborne of 4607 Drexel rd., College Park, Md., learned long ago that it's a wise mother who can always understand her children.

For example, 10-year-old Audrey came home from school the other day with her head crammed with newly won information about the top men in our Government. And Mama's introduction to this news came with the announcement:

"You know what we're studying now, Mom? We're studying about Mr. Truman and his cupboard."

GUIDING LIGHT

"I am increasingly conscious these days of the need for spiritual reawakening in this country," writes J. L. J. of Congress st. se.

"To aid in the preservation of our blessings, I propose a visual reminder of our dependence on God—an eternal light in all of our major cities.

"Perhaps we could have illuminated signs, like that on the Eternal Light Peace Memorial in the National Cemetery at Gettysburg. It reads:

"'Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a Nation.'

"We have signs advertising soap and tobacco and a host of other commodities. Why not a constant reminder of the spiritual strength we need so much?"

I hate to admit this, but the quotation in the above letter was only vaguely familiar to me until I looked it up.

It's from the second stanza of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

BY THE WAY——

Don't forget the Joint State Societies' Charity Ball at the Shoreham tonight.

Thirty-five State Societies are sponsoring the affair, a score of merchants will give away free prizes, and the Hecht Co. will put on a summer fashion show.

Tickets are only $1 (get them at the door) and the money goes to Children's Hospital. Why not drop in?

IT SEEMS THERE ARE TWO NEW YORKS

In a radio debate last week, Congressman A. L. Miller of Nebraska spoke in favor of a sales tax for the District, while Congressman Arthur G. Klein of New York argued against the tax.

I pointed out that Congressman Miller, who wants the tax here, comes from a State in which the levy was defeated with his help; whereas Congressman Klein, who is against the tax here, "comes from a State which has a sales tax."

But Mr. Klein reminds me that it's New York City which has the sales tax, not the State of New York.

I stand corrected, and have sentenced myself to read the full text of one John L. Lewis statement, as punishment.

I guess I must have lapsed into Heywood Broun's old habit of thinking that New York City is all that matters.

When Broun went on tour, he didn't bother to tell his readers exactly where he was. He just date-lined his column: "Someplace west of the Hudson."

WAS DAVE READING BY KANDEL LIGHT?

Oh, listen to my tragic story
And to its wise moral pay heed:
I wasted my life on success books
And didn't have time to succeed.

LEAP YEAR SPRING

A few days ago we ran Jerry Boin's poem about what happens to a young man's fancy and a young bird's fancy in the springtime.

Arny Malhmood of 1023 Otis pl. nw. says the poem reminded him of the old saying:

PIED TYPE DEPT.

We took a lot of ribbing when a headline in Thursday's paper spelled "communion" with an "s" in place of the final "o."

If one little letter can make such a big difference, imagine what happens when a whole line of type gets lost. Take the example cited by Mrs. E. A. Arneson of 4110 Fairfax st., Landover Hills, Md.

A small town paper published near here intended to express its gratification that Mr. Natalie wasn't injured very badly—but here's what it actually printed:

NEW YORK.—The other night "Oklahoma!" celebrated its fifth anniversary. Ruth Weston, who stepped into the Aunt Eller role originated by Betty Garde, worked several years in that role. For a long period before the "Oklahoma!" assignment the plays in which she appeared had brief runs. That year she had only three weeks' work. And when she stepped onstage again her timing again was perfect and her performance drew applause . . . "After 49 weeks of unemployment, you feel that the theater is no fit place for a human," Miss Weston said. "But once you step onstage, and see crowds out front—you forget all about the 49 weeks."

The James Mason entourage, which left for the West has occupied three drawing rooms—because they had their five cats with them, and the railroad company permits no more than two cats in one drawing room.

Oscar Levant said of himself, "I'm a good husband, in a truculent sort of way" . . . Ira Gershwin wrote a new verse and two special choruses to the Gershwin song, "I Can't Get Started With You," for his sister-in-law, Judy Gershwin, for use during her current singing engagement at Le Ruban Bleu.

After Toscanini finished rehearsing Don Gillis' new symphony No. 5½, the composer timidly suggested that the interpretation of one passage had been a bit too classic. Toscanini told him: "Show me what you mean, on the piano." Gillis played a few bars, and the maestro said: "Why didn't you say you wanted boogie-woogie? Remember, I'm an American. I'm hep."

Desi Arnaz is getting the highest salary of his career at the Harem. Arnaz's first engagement there was when it was called the Hurricane. He was hired the week he proposed to his wife, Lucille Ball. When he was asked how much he wanted, Arnaz said: "Either $750, or $1250 a week—depending on whether I have a wife to support."

Gregory Ratoff visited Paris, where he met George Raft, who told him: "I ran into a bunch of American expatriates here. They were cute. They taught me how to say 'Give me the check,' in French. They had me practicing it in restaurants, and I always got the check" . . . "They weren't expatriates. They were impostors," said Ratoff. "A real expatriate would have left before the check was presented."

Snyder, Giannini Talk Claimed

By Drew Pearson

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and A. P. Giannini, the big California banker, held a super-secret dinner in Palm Beach, Fla., recently. They hired a private room of a small Italian restaurant for the confab — probably to discuss the date Snyder will resign as Secretary of the Treasury and join the Giannini bank . . . Friends of Jim Farley say he would no longer be satisfied with No. 2 place on the Democratic ticket, is now out to be President . . . Sad commentary on the current prestige of the White House: Sam Rosenman says the report that he was taking a job as counsel to President Truman has done him "incalculable injury." The report isn't true . . . Senator "Pass-the-Biscuits Pappy" O'Daniel has dropped to an all-time low in Texas popularity according to recent polls. Only 7 per cent of Texas voters are for him. Former Gov. Coke Stevenson and Congressman Lyndon Johnson, the latter not yet an announced candidate for the Senate, run first in popularity.

A. P. GIANNINI

Wrist Watches and Democracy

When Russian troops got into Berlin, they were dazzled even by Hitler's disrupted and shoddy civilization. They bought wrist watches by the bushel. They piled horsecarts full of all sorts of material things. This was a new world. They never knew such things existed. They had heard only Moscow's propaganda that communism produced the best of all things, and for the first time they began to have their doubts.

That's why there have been so many Red army desertions in occupied Europe.

Remembering this, I have been thinking it might be a good idea to beam a radio program to Russia and other semi-iron-curtain countries, offering a hundred wrist watches as prizes for the best letters on how to bring about a democratic peace with the USA—on how to make peace and democracy live.

For the chance to get a wrist watch thousands of Russians and other Europeans would keep their ears glued to the radio day and night. Not only would they do some special thinking about peace and democracy but incidentally they would hear a lot more of the State Department's propaganda broadcasts. Most important of all, they would do some thinking about friendship with the United States.

Maybe I'm wrong, but somehow I think the idea might work. At any rate you can't beat something with nothing. You can't lick phony ideas except by getting better ideas to take their places. And we can't sit watching the world drift toward war without doing something about it.

Perhaps we could stage a quick trial of the idea in Italy where democracy is fighting a vital front-line battle, then later warm up to a longer radio barrage to the Russian people on how to make democracy live.

Soap Won Friends

During the war we spent millions dropping pamphlets, soap, and tea bags with messages attached in order to win people behind the enemy lines. This is modern warfare. It saves a lot of lives.

Today we are spending billions to draft men, build airplane carriers, prepare for another war. But we spend almost nothing on trying to head off that war—on softening the potential enemy, on winning over its people.

Americans are the most ingenious and resourceful people in the world. We are also supposed to be the greatest salesmen. And if we can't sell democracy better than the Russians can sell communism, there's something wrong with us.

Several centuries ago, men fought with swords and lances. They had to be within striking distance. Later they fought a little further apart with muskets and cannon. Then field artillery was able to increase the range until now the airplane and rocket have carried warfare across oceans and continents.

However, the range must be increased even further. It must be increased to 5000 miles or more, by radio, letter or courier to undermine the ability of dictators to make war. Actually, the strategy of the future has got to be a campaign to prevent war.

You can call it commercial if you want to, but we've got to apply modern American techniques to the business of selling peace.

Streamlining War Purchases

Congressman Jack Anderson, California Republican, is pressing the National Defense Department to streamline its cumbersome and costly procurement system.

It was supposed to be streamlined by the unification law, but Anderson is urging the services to adopt a single catalog and avoid the confusing duplication which now exists. Under the present system the Army and Navy frequently buy against each other and a single article usually is listed several times under different procurement numbers.

Anderson made this recommendation in a letter to Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, who, as usual, indicated that steps already had been taken. However, if the Defense Department fails to follow through, Anderson has threatened to call hearings before his Armed Services Subcommittee.
